'Gansett Track Operators Called 'Embezzlers'

FOE BRANDS O'HARA AS 'COWARD'

By JAMES J. DELANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Providence, R. I., Sept. 16 — Attorney General John P. Hartigan today charged before the state racing division that the Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., was "guilty of embezzlement" and that its license should be revoked and Walter E. O'Hara removed as president and general manager.

In his argument following the completion of testimony by the defense, the attorney-general made a blistering attack on O'Hara, Rhode Island racing tycoon.

Just before Hartigan began his argument, the racing division denied a motion by counsel for O'Hara and the track that the charges brought against the racing association be dropped.

The Narragansett Racing Association was summoned to show cause why its license should not be suspended or revoked after seven charges were brought against it by the racing board.

The hearing, which went its third day today, adjourned at 1:15 p. m. with the announcement that the

Bartolini Tells of Love In Asquith Death Camp

Oscar V. Bartolini, Quincy chef and handy man accused as the slayer of Mrs. Grayce Asquith, Weymouth "merry widow," took the stand in his own defense today in Dedham Superior Court.

Only half and hour after the prosecution had rested, the alleged slayer, in a courtroom thronged mostly with women, recited a story of love in the widow's lakeside cottage as he was led in his testimony up to the murder date, September 20 of last year.

He testified in Italian, with an interpreter, Alfonso Lambiase, standing beside the witness stand and following in English.

From time to time Bartolini referred to a sheaf of notes he had made in the prisoner's cage during the state's case.

MADE LOVE TO HER

For four or five years he had known Grayce Asquith, he said, and John Albert Lyons, her suitor who is still missing, he had known two or three years.

Bartolini came alone to the United States in 1923, he said, and is a widower with three children in Genoa.

Brought up to the date of September 18, 1936 (a Friday) Bartolini testified that he called on Grayce Asquith that day and made ardent love to her.

Bartolini's recital of the love-making in the widow's living room was interrupted when District Attorney Dewing jumped to his feet with an objection.

"Now, Your Honor," declared

4 Cutters Comb Sea For Endeavour I, Missing 3 Days

Despite earlier assurance from coast guard quarters designed to allay fears for the missing British sloop Endeavour I, four coast guard cutters today headed into the Atlantic in search for her.

The Harriet Lane and Tahoe, on patrol duty off the Massachusetts coast, were ordered to join the cutters Cayuga and Chelan in a wide sweep 200 miles east of Nantucket where the big sloop parted from her convoy's tow line in a gale Monday night.

Captain Wallace Grint of the motor yacht Viva, towing Endeavour I when the line broke, said at Newport today the Endeavour should have put into Halifax yesterday if she headed in that direction.

R. I. MAN HELD IN SLAYING OF DOCTOR

Providence, R. I., Sept. 16—With the arrest of a former Massachusetts coast guardsman, police today announced they had solved the murder of Dr. George W. Webster, who was shot to death in the vestibule of his home exactly two months ago.

In booking Jack E. Ennis, 31, on a charge of first degree murder, authorities declared they had established robbery as the motive for the crime.

Meanwhile the prisoner, shaken and distraught after more than 30 hours of exhaustive questioning, still stoutly maintained his innocence.

He will be arraigned in sixth district court tomorrow, and the case will be submitted to the grand jury immediately after it convenes the first of next month, Atty.-Gen. John P. Hartigan asserted.

MURDER LULL ENDS

Seizure of Ennis, who has been living with his stepmother at Warwick, R. I., ended a prolonged lull in the murder which startled the city early this summer.

Three 45-caliber bullets were fired into the body of the 39-year-old physician soon after he left his automobile outside his fashionable Emilius street residence.

Police revealed that Ennis had been working as a laborer in the vicinity of the Webster home.

They maintained he was in a position to know who was home

100 Officers at Rites for Murphy

2ND NEWTON POLICE HERO MOURNED

TRIBUTE PAID MAN WOUNDED AIDING PAL

For the second time within a few weeks, funeral services for a Newton police officer, shot in the performance of his duty, were held today.

With more than 100 officers from Newton, Waltham and Watertown heading the procession, the body of Patrolman Lawrence E. Murphy was borne from his home on Chapel street, Newton, to the Church of Our Lady Help of Christians, Newton.

Patrolman Murphy and Officer Henry G. Bell, the first victim, died of bullet wounds alleged to have been fired from the gun of Edward P. Simpson, escaped convict, now held for murder on two counts.

Borne by six fellow officers who acted as pallbearers, the casket was carried through two lines of policemen into the church, followed by the grief-stricken widow, Mrs. Rachel Murphy, who was escorted by William F. Joyce, the undertaker.

Two of the slain officer's four children followed their mother. They were Ruth, 10, and May, 8. Because of their ages the two other children, Lawrence, 5, and Barbara, 3, did not attend.

Among the first mourners in the church were Mrs. Henry G. Bell, widow of the first officer to die, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell, parents of the victim.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. John A. Sheridan, I.P.P. The deacon was Russell T. Haley, while the sub-deacon was Rev. Daniel F. Reardon.

Patrolman Ambrose M. Doherty of Newton was the soloist and Mrs. Ellen A. Passanante the organist.

Following the services the funeral cortege moved along Washington street to West Newton square and passed the police headquarters building, which was draped in mourning. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham, five lots away from where Bell was buried.

The pallbearers were Patrolman James McHugh, David T. Dalton, James S. Goddard, Joseph H. Smith, John J. McGrath and Daniel Keating.

Sergeant Thomas F. Leehan led the detail of Newton police; Sergeant Joseph Stead the Watertown officers and Sergeant William J. Lyons the Waltham delegation.

Among those attending the services were Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, State Senator Arthur W. Hollis, Judge Thomas Weston of Newton court, Judge P. Sarsfield Cunniff of Waltham court, Police Chief Timothy Leahy of Cambridge, Police Chief Michael T. Hughes of Newton and three members of the Newton board of aldermen, John E. Barwise, Frank T. McCabe and Edward A. Fahey.

Two Cutters Hunt Endeavour I

Two coast guard cutters, the Cayuga and the Chelan, ploughed through heavy seas about 200 miles east of Nantucket today, searching for the missing Endeavour I, English cup trials yacht, lost Monday with 19 men aboard when her towline parted during a 100-mile gale.

Coast guardsmen expected to reach the scene where the yacht is believed drifting northward toward Nova Scotia some time early this afternoon.

No word has been heard from the Endeavour I since Monday night when she parted from her convoy, the steam yacht Viva, owned by Frederick Sigrist, partner of T. O. M. Sopwith, beaten America's Cup challenger.

'GANSETT HEARING ENDS

racing division was reserving its decision until a later date.

Following the adjournment, the racing board announced that it was meeting privately this afternoon to go over the transcript of the evidence.

At the same time it was announced that the board was meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, at which time it was expected the decision would be announced.

In many quarters, however, persons believed that a decision would be expected late this afternoon.

At intervals during Hartigan's bitter attack, defense counsel jumped to their feet and objected on the grounds the attorney-general was not restricting himself to testimony. But they were overruled and their exceptions noted.

Hartigan charged O'Hara didn't have the courage to come up to the hearing and defend himself, but "has run off to cover in his penthouse."

The attorney-general argued before the racing division:

REFERS TO TICKET FUND

"I charge the Narragansett Racing Association guilty of embezzlement," he began, referring to change No. 1 that the track illegally used funds set aside to pay uncashed winning pari-mutual tickets.

"I charge and reiterate the charge that they're guilty of embezzlement. The association sets up an account for the purpose of meeting outstanding tickets, and they transfered this money to other accounts.

(It was testified that $58,000 of this "outs and claims" account was transferred May 1, the day 'Gansett opened, but was put back by May 19.)

"Not only are they guilty of embezzlement on that charge of transferring funds from outstanding tickets, but they are also guilty in connection with the so-called racing fund—money put in the hands of the racing association as a matter of convenience by horsemen who trusted the corporation.

"They take $45,000 out of $48,000 to mingle with the $58,000 to bring to the track with them in the $200,000 bankroll for the purpose, they say, of making change.

"Such notorious conduct justifies the commission, not only in suspending, but in revoking the license of a corporation that would stoop to such conduct.

LASHES OUT AT O'HARA

"He (O'Hara) hasn't the courage to come down himself but leaves it to the poor policeman to do his dirty work in blocking the agents of the state.

(Hartigan referred to the agents of the racing commission who were refused admittance to the track office.)

"We know that O'Hara's stool pigeons and others acting for him denied the state the right to examine the track books.

"You will give O'Hara carte blanche to run this track and run everything else in Rhode Island if he is not made subject to the rules of this commission.

Referring to the testimony of Roles that O'Hara engaged in an altercation with him Labor Day morning at 6:30 a. m., Hartigan declared:

"The records show that O'Hara called a trainer licensed by this division a 'thief.' That implies this commission licenses thieves to train horses in the state of Rhode Island.

"O'Hara hasn't the courage to come in and deny it. He runs to cover like a coward.

"He's all right when he's in his penthouse surrounded by his gang, but he has no courage to come out in public and meet these charges.

"The charges are not denied by Robert Curran, his trainer. Why didn't he come in and deny the charges?

"He's another big fellow within the confines of the track—with his men as 'stools'—but he doesn't dare to come out in public."

"COMMON BRAWL"

"What a nice picture of a president and managing director. It was a common brawl—the managing director and president of a corporation licensed by you.

"If you're going to stand for that kind of stuff in Rhode Island, horse racing ought to be eliminated.

"Men who conduct business under the license of the laws of Rhode Island must abide by them.

"Then we come to the cowardly, dastardly attack made on the chief executive of Rhode Island.

"I need not stand here in defense of the reputation of Governor Robert E. Quinn of this state."

"His character and reputation shine resplendent in the sun against the character and reputation of O'Hara, who speaks a language of the gutter.

POINTS TO "LIAR" CHARGE

"The governor of the state of Rhode Island has been called by the chief officer of a corporation that you licensed a '—— —— liar' in his own newspaper after the governor initiates charges that are lawful and presents them to this commission.

"This board should put it right up to the Narragansett Racing Association to get rid of O'Hara or you'll suffer the consequences from one who has given vile slander to the governor of this state.

"What would happen if O'Hara made such a charge against our courts or one of our judges? He is too careful to do that lest he be brought in for contempt.

"Yet he takes a slam at a branch of our government just as powerful as the judicial branch and he still thinks they are not going to take any notice of that.

"I hate to mention Quinn and O'Hara in the same breath. Quinn's light not only shines through this state, but also through all New England. But I can't say the same thing about O'Hara.

"If there ever was a case so lopsided and onesided against the Narragansett Racing Association and O'Hara, it is this.

"And I hope this board tells the people of Rhode Island that by whatever decision it makes today.

"If you are going to have racing in Rhode Island, it's going to be conducted by reputable men and not by racketeers."

REFERS TO "MOVIE"

Referring to a movie that he saw recently in which a 'racketeer gets control of a newspaper,' Hartigan continued, over strenuous objection of defense counsel:

"We don't want any such character in Rhode Island. We don't want anyone like that here. This man steps out of his character as the runner of a race track into the character of a newspaper publisher and in another breath slanders the governor of Rhode Island and other decent citizens.

"It is as plain as the nose on your face that this man, this corporation are not fit people to be licensed by this board.

CALLS FOR "HONESTY"

"The people of Rhode Island are entitled to clean racing, honest racing, supplied by clean people with clean character—decent, honest, reputable people.

Hartigan then lauded Tom Thorp, chief steward at 'Gansett and famous football referee, who was the second witness to be called by the defense today.

"Thorp was in bad company when he had to associate with O'Hara in a business way," Hartigan asserted.

"It is a good thing we have Thorp watching the races in Rhode Island."

Edward T. Hogan, one of O'Hara's lawyers, took up the argument for the defense.

He contended that the racing commission had not ruled what the association should do with the money. He stated that the money under the "outs and claims" account was always in the custody of the association.

"If there was any embezzlement—as Hartigan maintained—," Hogan continued, "why wasn't it embezzlement in January when the attorney general, in an opinion to the commission, said that the legislature may at sometime want to pass a law to treat this money just like they handled unclaimed bank accounts?

ASKS "WHY" OF DELAY

"Why did he permit it? Why didn't he do something about it? He had all the agencies at his command with which to do it. The facts and the circumstances do not meet the fundamental law of embezzlement."

Referring to the statement printed in the Providence Star-Tribune that Governor Quinn was a "—— —— liar," Hogan asked the commission to view this charge "in a judicial atmosphere."

The only evidence in the record, Hogan declared, came from Ralph E. Bailey, editor of the Star-Tribune. Bailey at no time testified that the statement was written, printed or published by O'Hara.

Duce's Son Leaves for Hollywood

Vittorio, Hal Roach Partners in Firm

Naples, Italy, Sept. 16 (AP).—Vittorio Mussolini, his full face beaming, sailed for the magic land of the movies today.

Il Duce's 20-year-old son embarked on the liner Rex for New York and eventually Hollywood to find out what makes the movie business tick. With him was Hal Roach, his associate in a new Italian motion picture company.

Vittorio's younger brother Bruno and a lot of notables were on hand to see him off. No Mussolini ever has been to America before, and Vittorio is going properly. He has a diplomatic passport which entitles him to privileges at customs and elsewhere.

When he gets to the United States Vittorio will catch a fleeting glimpse of New York's skyscrapers and then will fly to Hollywood.

His friends told something about the new movie company which he heads.

Capitalization is $2,000,000, of which Roach is putting up a million. Vittorio and his friends are furnishing $500,000 and a Rome bank the rest.

Incidentally, Roach now has the distinction of being one of a very few persons to deliver an ultimatum to Il Duce and get away with it.

He got entangled in the red tape of regulations which bind Italian business while he was setting up the movie project. Disgusted, he told Il Duce the deal was off unless he got a free hand. He got the free hand, and now he doesn't even have to abide by the usually rigid currency and exchange regulations.

Eight Flee Everett Dwelling Blaze

Eight persons, including three small children, were driven from their homes today when heat of sun rays exploded paint and oil on the rear porch of a three-family house in Highland avenue, Everett.

Flames roared up the rear of the building, cutting off escape in that direction.

Carrying her son, James, three, Mrs. Fred Robertson fled from the first floor flat.

From the second floor, Mrs. Arthur Morrison carried her daughter, Ruth, two, to safety.

Mrs. Wilson Beldin, third floor tenant, carried her youngest son, Lloyd, four, to the street, while Wilson, Jr., nine, led out Robert, five.

and who was away in the neighborhood at the time the physician was shot.

Authorities soon discovered that the type of bullets used by the slayer were the same as those used by coast guardsmen.

CHECK C. G. GUNS

They were checking equipment at the Watch Hill station, where Ennis was formerly assigned, to learn if any of the 45 calibre automatics were missing.

The first real "break" in the case came the Saturday before Labor Day, police said, when Mrs. Katheryn Craig Webster, widow of the murdered doctor, received a letter from Maynard, Mass.

The letter-writer offered certain information regarding the slaying, Deputy Superintendent of Police Thomas J. Cusick revealed, but was reluctant to deal with the police directly.

Because of this condition private detectives were engaged to establish contact.

WALKED INTO TRAP

With the aid of the private operatives a trap was set in a house in an undisclosed Providence street. The prisoner was seized when he walked into the place at 8 a. m. yesterday.

Meanwhile, two women and a man informed police that a man resembling Ennis had hurled a gun into the Seekonk River after the crime.

These three, one of them a bridge tender, may all be held as material witnesses, authorities announced.

This afternoon, a squad of 35 firemen were probing the river bottom in a search for the weapon. The instruments of search included rakes, metal-detecting devices and diving equipment.

Police also announced an automobile belonging to Ennis had been seized from a parking lot. A number of notebooks were found in the car, it was said.

While all this was going on, Lester T. Murphy appeared at police headquarters and said he had been retained to defend Ennis by a former employer who believed him innocent.

NO PREVIOUS RECORD

As Ennis was a former resident of New Bedford, Mass., a Detective Grennan of that city arrived here today to aid local authorities in pressing the case against the defendant.

So far as police have been able to determine, Ennis has no previous criminal record. He is not married, authorities established.

In fixing the case as one of murder and theft, police definitely abandoned their original theories that Dr. Webster was shot by a love-mad slayer or for gambling debt trouble.

By FRANK K. REILLY

District Attorney William J. Foley left both former Governor James M. Curley and School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin far behind in a spurt today as a storm of paper ballots marked for him flooded the offices of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser straw vote editors.

When the tabulation of today's mail was completed, Foley held second place in the list of candidates, leading Tobin by a substantial margin, and running so close to former Governor Curley that he was within striking distance of the top of the ticket.

Former Representative Alfred Santosuosso received a large vote today and it was evident that enthusiasm in his political camp had been aroused to a high pitch by the splendid showing he has made daily since the inaguration of the straw ballot by these newspapers. He remained in fourth place.

FARRELL QUITS

Henry J. Farrell of 47 Corey street, Charlestown, withdrew from the mayoralty contest last night, announcing at the same time that he will place his organization solidly on the line for former Governor Curley.

"I have no desire to promote the chances of the Republican Party by remaining in the fight, since my candidacy might take votes away from Mr. Curley," he said. "I am convinced that Curley will be the next mayor of Boston."

Officers of the Women's Democratic Club of Ward 12, Roxbury, last night presented former Governor Curley with signatures of 2500 registered voters of that district who have pledged themselves to vote for him on November 2.

Six votes were received in today's mails for Capt. David J. Brickley, former member of the Boston City Council, and newly elected state commander of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor. It has been rumored that Capt. Brickley would enter the contest, but to date he has made no formal announcement of his candidacy.

MEETING FOR TOBIN

Invitation was sent out today to all active members of the Tobin mayoralty committee to meet with their candidate at his new headquarters at 18 Oliver street at 3 p. m. next Sunday. Tobin has taken over an entire floor of the building and all of his clerical forces are housed there.

Former City Assessor Timothy W. Murphy, one of the directors of the Malcolm E. Nichols campaign committee, yesterday opened offices in the Park Square Building.

Nichols went into fifth place in today's straw balloting, when, as had been indicated by yesterday's returns, he exchanged places with President John I. Fitzgerald of the Boston City Council, whose vote today was smaller than at any time since the beginning of the tabulation.

With the exception of Carleton L. Brett of Dorchester, who seeks the support of the Social Justice group, and of Jeremiah J. McCarthy of Roslindale, only Irish-born candidate in the field, the ballots cast for the remaining candidates were few.

MANSER RESPONSE

First votes were received today for Charles L. Manser, Republican candidate, who applied for nomination papers at the offices of the municipal election commission on Tuesday. One Manser enthusiast wrote: "Mr. Manser is the logical Republican candidate for mayor. He will win."

Friends of each of the candidates are requested to mail a straw ballot to the offices of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser today.

Accurate daily reports will be made as to the progress of the vote. Each candidate will be credited with every vote mailed for him. There will be no favoritism.

Readers who have not as yet mailed a ballot are urged to do so today. Only through the cooperation of each subscriber can the editors of these newspapers give their readers a true picture of the strength of each of the 13 contenders.

Wife No. 4 Heads For Reno, Tommy Gives Party

New Rochelle, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP).—Tommy "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" Manville gave a going-away party early today for Mrs. Manville No. 4, but the guest of honor was conspicuously absent.

In fact, she wasn't invited. With a parting promise of $200,000 from Tommy, she was on her way by plane to Reno and a divorce.

At the scheduled time of the take-off, just after midnight, Tommy and 18 assorted celebrants at his estate here—only one a blonde—raised their glasses in a toast—"to Marcelle."

"Oh, boy, am I relieved," whooped Tommy, who changes wives with the seasons—or so it seems. "I feel about 20 years younger, no kidding!"

At Newark airport, the departure of Mrs. Manville's plane was delayed six minutes by photographers and reporters. Marcelle was "very happy," too, said her attorney, Carl Helm.

Big Constitution Program to Open At 10 Tomorrow

Tomorrow will be one of the greatest days in the history of the state when the Commonwealth of Massachusetts observes the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States.

The day's celebration opens at 10 a. m. in the Paul Revere house, North End, where Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution gather to pay tribute to Rufus King and Nathaniel Gorham, the two Bay Staters who signed the Constitution.

Following the exercises, a visit will be paid to the graves of the two signers, and Governor Charles F. Hurley will place wreaths at their tombstones.

King is buried in Old Cambridge Cemetery, Charlestown.

CONCERT AT NOON

Beginning at noon a band concert will be held in Parkman bandstand and will continue until 3 p. m.

The big event of the day will be the huge parade, composed of nearly 40,000 marchers that will swing through downtown Boston streets.

According to Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole, chief marshal, the parade will take four hours to pass a given point.

The day's observance will be climaxed by a huge fireworks display to be held in Boston Common following the finish of the parade.

According to Chief Marshal Cole, one of the most imposing arrays of national, state and city dignitaries will be in the line of march.

Prominent figures, including the judiciary, academic, commercial and industrial life of Massachusetts will also march over the three-mile route.

TANKS IN LEAD

Preceding the chief of staff and mounted police the Third Battalion, 66th Infantry, light tanks will lead off the parade. The tanks will go ahead of the parade column and halt before each reviewing stand and await the arrival of the chief marshal and then move forward past the reviewing stand with the whole parade.

From the Governor's reviewing stand in front of the State House the procession will then swing down Park street, proceeding south along Tremont street to Boylston, into Park square and along Columbus avenue to West Newton street, the dismissal point.

The parade will be made up of six divisions. Regular army, naval and marine units, National Guard and Reserve Officers' Corps will comprise the first division under command of Major General Daniel Needham.

WAR VETERANS

Major Ralph Eshart will lead the second division made up of veterans of all wars. Patrick J. Moynihan, state deputy of the Knights of Columbus will be marshal of the third division composed of fraternal and racial groups.

Colonel George S. Penney will head the fifth division of 5000 high school cadets.

The last and biggest division of the parade under command of Lt. General Edward L. Logan will be floats and delegations from more than 30 cities and towns throughout the state.

Boston will have the honor place in this division and more than 500 firemen and policemen as well as fire apparatus and police equipment will be included in the Hub contingent.

Perhaps the largest representation in the parade will be the City of Cambridge with nearly 5000 marchers. The Cambridge paraders will form in Kendall Square and march over the West Boston bridge and through the Esplanade to their formation point in Beacon street.

LYNCH TO LEAD

Mayor John Lynch will lead his delegation.

The services of 2000 Boy Scouts have been offered for service along the parade route as messengers and for first aid assistance.

The Massachusetts Sesquicentennial Commission also announced that prizes would be awarded the best bands and drum corps.

First prize for bands will be $100 and second prize will amount to $75. In the drum corps, $100 will be given the winner and a prize of $75 to the runner-up. Bands and drum corps will be judged from appearance, playing ability, marching and cadence.

Already the sidewalks along the parade route have been roped off in order to keep the parade route clear for the marchers.

Neylan Hits Tamperers Of Constitution

Special to Boston Evening American

San Francisco, Sept. 16—Against the meddlers and tamperers with the Constitution, but chiefly against that lethargy on the part of lawyer and layman alike which countenances that meddling and tampering, Attorney John Francis Neylan delivered a stinging rebuke here today.

Addressing a Bar Association Constitution Day meeting, Neylan pointed to the price in human blood and sacrifice paid for the Constitution 150 years ago, then wheeled sharply to the present day.

"We accept the benefits of the Constitution like remittance men—like spoiled children.

"Subconsciously we believe we shall always be free because we have always been free; that we will always enjoy freedom of religion and freedom of speech because we have been born with them."

To the law profession he charged the duty of bringing home to the public that these are unique, rather than universal privileges, and that they accrue from a constitution and a form of government specifically designed 150 years ago, to perpetuate them.

To charges that the Supreme Court "usurps certain powers," Neylan replied that those charges have been exploded so many times that it should be evident by now that they are utterly groundless. He said:

"The Supreme Court has been the guardian of those great human rights that make life livable in this nation, and the absence of which render life unlivable in other nations."

Stand Collapses, Injuring Many

Cologne (Germany), Sept. 16 (INS)—Many were injured today in the collapse of a grandstand containing 2000 persons witnessing army maneuvers here.

Many high Nazi officials and members of the diplomatic corps were in the stand when it crashed.

Operates On Child At Sea

Snatched From Death By Young Interne

New York, Sept. 16 (INS) — A dramatic story of an emergency spinal operation, performed upon six-year-old Joan Millward in the infirmary of the liner Eastern Prince, rolling in a South Atlantic swell, by a doctor in his second year of interneship, came to light today when the liner docked in Brooklyn.

Little Joan, with her mother, Mrs. Beatrice Millward, and two sisters, was en route here to rejoin her father, Harold Millward, bank executive recently transferred from Buenos Aires, when she was stricken aboard ship with measles and went into a coma.

Although there were six physicians among the passengers, Dr. T. E. Jarret, 24, of the ship's staff, working with Dr. M. Finkleman, of Passaic, N. J., chose to operate.

The ship's engines were stopped while the young physician, who had gone to sea as a ship's doctor for the summer, tapped the poison in the child's spinal column.

Bridal Ban Lifted For Baby's Sake; Boy, Girl 'Elope'

San Francisco, Sept. 16 (INS)—Two 15-year-old youngsters were seeking a preacher today. They are Cecelia Ramirez, an expectant mother, and Manuel Del Llano.

Superior Judge George J. Steiger, who previously refused to grant court permission for the marriage, rescinded his order when a physician's report, confirming the girl's condition, was placed before him.

"My new feeling, based on further deliberation of the case," said Judge Steiger, "is that if a child is to be born, it must be born with a name, because that is the only humane thing to do."

Judge Steiger offered to perform the ceremony himself, but the youngsters could not be located, leading to belief they might have eloped across the state line to Nevada, where there is no three-day wait before a wedding license is issued.

Although the parents of the children had given the youngsters their parental blessing and made arrangements for a wedding feast, the juvenile court authorities balked the wedding plans, citing Manuel's four-year juvenile court record of auto thefts.

MANUFACTURERS GRANT PAY RISE

Union Tailors Get 12% Increase

Manufacturers of men's clothing and officers of The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America terminated discussion of a new contract today. The union was awarded a flat increase of 12%, effective May 15th.

AGAIN Bond bucks the tide! We did it last Spring, when we sat tight during the first wave of price boosts. There'll be no change in our picture, this Fall.

True, things are higher all along the line. Automobiles cost more, food is up, rents are up—and clothing is up! But is the public ready to shoulder this load? We think not! Therefore, we believe it's good business, for us and for you, to keep prices down—to sell more at a smaller profit—to let increased volume make up the difference.

Past performance proves the soundness of this policy. New customers—thousands of them—applauded our stand last Spring, when many clothiers raised prices, and we didn't. The same will happen again, this Fall.

Bond volume—largest in America—is the powerful force which makes this possible. It has been built on the foundation of giving you the best clothing we could make, honestly priced. It continues to do so—and more. For now, it enables us to absorb a large slice of the added costs—to avoid increase in prices.

What's more, we've two large factories and 3800 tailors to keep busy 52 weeks a year. Shutdowns are expensive. Lay-offs are bad business. Keeping prices down will avoid both.

And how about quality? Briefly—as long as there's a Bond shingle over a Bond store, there'll be no chiseling on quality. Here again, volume and tremendous purchasing power jump into the breach. Were we faced with the need of cutting quality to keep prices down, Bond prices would go up tomorrow. We've already said we were taking no chances on losing customers. Neither are we taking chances on losing our good name.

This Fall, you will continue to get the finest woolens our money can buy. You will continue to get Rochester-tailored quality at its best. You will continue to get two trousers with every suit. You will continue to get the convenience of a Bond Charge Account—with its weekly or twice-a-month payments—AT NO EXTRA COST. And you will not pay one cent more than you did last year, or the year before.

This Is Bond's way of doing business!

NEW YORK CALM AS VOTERS GO TO POLLS

New York, Sept. 16 (INS)—This city of 7,000,000 population manifested no undue excitement as the three-cornered mayoralty primary election campaign came to a close today. It was estimated that between 700,000 and 1,000,000 men and women would cast ballots.

It was not a legal holiday and business proceeded as usual. The polls did not open until 3 p. m. and will close at 10 p. m. While the balloting is in progress no liquor will be sold in saloons, restaurants and hotels.

The police, as customary, made preparations to guard every polling booth in the city.

Candidates in this confusion campaign, which was marked by the injection of the New Deal and the Ku Klux Klan as issues, are:

ON BOTH TICKETS

Republican: Mayor F. H. LaGuardia (elected last time as a fusionite) and United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, a Tammany anti-New Dealer.

Democratic: Copeland versus Jeremiah T. Mahoney, a Tammany New Dealer.

(In other words Dr. Copeland is running on both tickets.)

Whether warranted or not, there is a strong feeling all over the city that LaGuardia will win the Republican nomination. If he doesn't it will be the major upset of the primary election.

Who the winner will be on the Democratic ticket—Copeland or Mahoney—is another question, and it was open to all kinds of argument, pro and con, as the voters prepared to trek to the polls.

IMPORTANT TO TAMMANY

Tammany Hall's prestige, which has suffered a number of hard jolts in recent years, was involved in an important way in the election. In years gone by Tammany controlled the situation in this normally strong Democratic city.

But a reverse trend set in when former Mayor James J. Walker resigned during the height of the celebrated Seabury investigation of the affairs of the city of New York. Tammany hasn't been itself since.

If, in today's primary, the New Dealer, Mahoney, is nominated, it is freely predicted that some mighty changes will take place within the confines of the wigwam. Mahoney's nomination would be a severe blow to former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who has a lot to say in Tammany these days. Smith is generally credited with being the sponsor of Copeland.

The nomination of Mahoney might even result in the overthrow of Christopher D. Sullivan, leader of Tammany, who has been working hand and glove with Al Smith.

It would also strengthen within Tammany the prestige of James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman and a Tammany man, who is reputed to be ambitious to become governor of New York State.

Plunges to Her Death In Canal

Woman Fights Off Rescuer in Lowell

Lowell, Sept. 16—Leaving a handbag and a note on the Red bridge, a woman believed to be Mrs. Helen Loranger, 43, of Central street, leaped to death today in the Pawtucket canal.

The note bore the signature "Helen M. Loranger."

It was in French and said the writer was "going to drown myself because I am not guilty of the larceny the police charge against me."

Two weeks ago Mrs. Loranger was arraigned in district court on a larceny charge and the case was continued until last Thursday for hearing. She failed to appear, a capias was issued and police had been looking for her since.

Workers on the day shift at the Massachusetts Mohair Plush Company mill saw the woman struggling in the canal today, although none of them had seen her go into the water.

Millage Rawnsley of Broadway, one of the mill workers, dived into the canal and seized the woman. When she seized him by the throat, however, they both went under the surface and Rawnsley was forced to break her hold.

Exhausted, Rawnsley then was forced to seek the shore, as the woman vanished downstream.

Her body was next seen slipping beneath the Thorndike bridge, just above the point where three other canals fork from the main canal. Into which one of these the woman's body was swept is not known yet.

Sergeant John P. Clancy and Patrolman Thomas Nelson took possession of the note and the purse found on the bridge by Miss Alice Albert of 43 Conduit street.

ITALY JITTERY AS BIG FLEET JAMS SEA

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service.)

Paris, Sept. 16 (INS)—Concentration of about [illegible] units of the Anglo-French fleets in the Mediterranean is making Italy nervous and is endangering conversations for settlement of Anglo-Italian differences arising out of the Abyssinian conquest, according to diplomatic information from Rome today.

Rome, it is declared, is not blind to the fact that under the flag of the Nyon anti-piracy conference Britain and France are assembling the largest fleet of warships in what Italy considers her "Mare Nostrum" since the peak of the Ethiopian crisis, and strongly resents it.

Also it is not failing to realize in Rome that under the Nyon [illegible] action the largest fleet of warships in many years is gathering in the Mediterranean. To Italians, this is beginning suspiciously to take on the appearance of something like a naval demonstration in waters which are vital to the life interests of Italy, it is declared.

Enthusiasm of the French press over Anglo-French naval co-operation, all in the name of putting down pirate submarines—of which nothing has been heard for more than a week—adds to the suspicious irritation.

Rome derides the stories in French newspapers that Mussolini is contemplating sending [illegible] troops to Spain to end the civil war quickly with victory for Generalissimo Franco.

Italy Must Request Part in Piracy Patrol

London, Sept. 16 (AP)—Great Britain and France pushed their Mediterranean naval activities to virtually a wartime basis today, and intimated that Italy must make the next move if she wants to join the "anti-piracy" patrol.

The two powers took the stand that any Italian suggestions, including Il Duce's demand for patrol parity, would be "considered," but neither England nor France has any intention of addressing further requests to Rome for collaboration.

Weighted with depth charges and torpedoes, the Anglo-French armada of more than [illegible] warships was mobilized to stop Mediterranean pirate submarine attacks on neutral shipping.

A squadron of Royal Air Force [illegible] boats were posted at the [illegible] to take off to-morrow [illegible] Malta to be the "eyes" of [illegible] fighters. France [illegible] a huge aerial armada for Mediterranean duty.

APPENDIX VICTIM

This attractiv young stage and radio singer, Shirley Lloyd, was at City Hospital today awaiting an operation, after having been stricken with acute appendicitis as she was on her way here to appear at a downtown theater.

Shirley Lloyd, Air Singer, Under Knife

Following an acute attack of appendicitis en route to Boston by train to begin a week's theatrical engagement, [illegible]-year-old radio singer Shirley Lloyd of Pueblo, Col., was operated upon today in City Hospital, where she was rushed in an ambulance upon her arrival in this city.

Doctors reported her condition as not serious.

Following receipt of a telegram at police headquarters telling of the girl's condition, an ambulance from Mill street station met the train at South Station.

Miss Lloyd was first taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital where a diagnosis was made and then transferred to City Hospital. Dr. Joseph D. Dugan performed the operation.

Find Bodies of 8 Killed in Air Crash

Lima, Peru, Sept. 16 (AP)—An ambulance truck today gathered up the bodies of eight persons, killed when a coastal passenger plane crashed into a hillside [illegible] miles south of Lima.

The plane, piloted by [illegible] Harvey, identified as a native of [illegible] and a former United States army flyer, had battled heavy fogs and night along the western coast of South America en route from Arica, Chile, to Lima. It carried seven passengers.

CHINA BATTLE OF MILLION MEN RAGES

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent (Copyright, 1937.)

Shanghai, Sept. 16 (INS)—Hidden in vast recesses of China never seen by white men, more than 1,000,000 Chinese and Japanese soldiers were locked today in a mighty battle on a continental scale.

From Shanghai to Kalgan in the far north, the opposing armies grappled in a conflict whose outcome may not be known for days. The numbers involved warrant World War rank, while the casualties exceed a thousand daily.

And in Shanghai itself, the bloody carnage continues. The rattle of machine-guns, the drone of war planes and the roar of bombs and shells combine to make a steady deafening din. Throughout the night, enormous mines explode and shake the earth.

SHANGHAI VITAL SECTOR

Presence of this bitter fighting on my doorstep is a constant and impressive reminder that Shanghai remains the most important southerly factor in the enormous war zone.

But a review of the entire battle territory today showed the whole area is equal to the northeastern quarter of the United States.

Aside from local advances and retreats, the fundamentally significant fact emerges that after months of warfare, China remains undivided.

Not a single Chinese war lord has detached himself and gone over to the Japanese side.

In China's previous wars during the first few weeks one or more Chinese generals have deserted to the enemy. But in this war any such one would be, in unanimous opinion, a Benedict Arnold certain to be assassinated by his own troops.

300,000 IN ARMY

A Japanese army spokesman today unwittingly furnished evidence that a Chinese army totalling [illegible] divisions is now fighting around Shanghai.

The evidence showed these 300,000 men were drawn from 14 of China's 18 provinces. A good example is provided by the fact that Chengtu, capital of warlord ridden Szechuan, traditionally rebellious against Nanking, today dispatched [illegible] troops to aid Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The Chinese army, depressed by the recent strategic withdrawal from the banks of the Whangpoo River, recovered its morale with today's capture of Lotien.

Heavy fog continued to hamper Japanese aviation, but war planes throughout the day bombed the North Station and Chapei which Chinese generals declare they will defend to the last man.

CHOLERA SPREADS

Meanwhile anxiety in the International Settlement increased over the spread of cholera.

Shanghai's main water supply is the Whangpoo river. The fact the stream is now adrift with corpses is not reassuring, although the water is chemically treated and guaranteed pure.

The fact that cholera has taken seven European lives has served to alarm the municipality and leads to widespread inoculation.

While the fighting raged here, Japanese forces in Hopei Province in the north launched a major offensive against Chinese troops stretched between the Peiping-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow railways.

The new drive in North China followed a vicious battle in which more than 1000 Chinese dead were left on rain-drenched battlefields as [illegible] Japanese troops pushed south and west from Peiping.

Nipponese tanks, artillery, airplanes and infantry detachments slogging through a sea of mud drove back a Chinese force that was estimated as high as [illegible] men. So far, two important towns—Taiung and Kwangling—have fallen to the Japanese in this advance.

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP)—Chicago's high schools opened their doors today to 165,000 pupils who have been barred from classrooms since Sept. 7 because of an outbreak of infantile paralysis.

Subsidence of the disease with the advent of cooler weather led the board of health to order the reopening of high schools and other institutions attended by children of high school age.

Cow Has Sextuplets

The Brighter Side

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved).

Among the major tragedies in the life of man is the departure of his hair.

Damon Runyon

It is tragedy only because of the romantic aspects of hair. If bald-headedness had a strong romantic appeal to the ladies, men would be running around with beans like billiard balls and the world would be better off.

When you come right down to it, the hair on a man's head is a liability to him, and to business in general, considering it from an economic standpoint. The value of the time that men waste in combing their hair probably runs into millions of dollars annually.

There can be no doubt that a race of bald-headed men would be much more efficient than men with hair on their heads. The bald-headed men, having no hair to comb, would get to work earlier. They would never pause during working hours to peer in mirrors, or to ogle nearby ladies. Bald-headed men realize that unless they are wearing their hats, it is futile for them to ogle ladies.

EXPENSE INVOLVED

The best thing that can be said for hair is that it is accounted decorative. Otherwise there is no good excuse for it. Hair harbors dandruff, which often escapes and renders coat collars unsightly. Hair represents an enormous expenditure in upkeep, beginning with the cost of brushes and combs.

Then there is the barber's bill for hair trimming and shampooing, and singeing and the like. Add to this the expense of the various oils and unguents that men use on the hair and you have a pretty total.

And for what?

For the ladies, that is for what.

The ladies like to see a man with a full crop of hair on his head. That is the only reason that a man endeavors to preserve his hair, as against the conveniences of baldness.

The ladies, when love's dream is young, like to run their fingers through their dear one's locks. We have interviewed a number of ladies on this point, and they all assert that there is no thrill whatever in running their hands over a bald pate, only the clammy sensation of contacting a hunk of ice.

Yet a bald head is generally clean and sanitary, while there is always the hazard in running loving fingers through a head of thick hair of the digits coming out anointed with vaseline, or bear grease, or other untidy substances.

DYE RUINS ROMANCE

We have a friend who has just suffered a disruption of the romance of his life because his beloved liked to run her fingers through his hair. Our friend had put himself away with her as on the near side of forty, but some silver threads had commenced to show among the black strands on his head, so he used to have his barber touch it up with dye.

In a moment of forgetfulness he granted his lady's desire one day soon after having his hair dyed and permitted her to run her loving fingers through his hair. Ever since her right hand looks as if she is wearing a black glove, and she not only refuses to have any more truck with our friend, but is talking about suing him for damages.

The almost complete absence of romance in bald heads is well recognized in Hollywood, where they make the movies. We can name you a number of gentlemen stars who normally do not have enough hair on their pates to pad a crutch, but who appear on the screen with magnificent bursts of foliage on their heads.

This is achieved by the use of toupees, which are false beards for bare skulls. It is true that the movie cameras rather ruthlessly bring out the exact lines on the disguised noggins where the phoney brush is fitted in with the remnants of the original hair, if any, but too much should not be made of this detail. The end justifies the means.

USUALLY BENEVOLENT

No one would care to see a gentleman with a naked dome shining like six-bits under the lights making love to some lovely maiden. There is, of course, no good reason why a bald headed man should not make love just as fervently as a fellow with hair to spare, and in fact we have heard of bald headed men who are reputed hot stuff in the clinches, but you could not make movie audiences believe it.

Nor is a bald headed villain exactly convincing. A bald head suggests good nature and benevolence.

CONNERY JOINS FOES OF BLACK AS JUSTICE

Insistence that President Roosevelt investigate charges that Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama is a member of the Ku Klux Klan grew today among New England political leaders.

Statements came today from United States Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, Congressman Charles L. Gifford of Cotuit and Lawrence J. Connery of Lynn, nominated on Tuesday as the Democratic candidate for Congress from the Seventh Massachusetts District to fill the office of his late brother, William P. Connery Jr.

CONNERY TELEGRAM

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, Connery stated:

"As the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Seventh Massachusetts District, I share with the people of this district the deep feeling that no man should be permitted to occupy a position of trust in our government when he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan or any organization fostering intolerance, bigotry or prejudice.

"I am confident in the knowledge of your characteristic tolerance that you will not sanction a continuance of Justice Black on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States if charges that he is a Klansman are upheld."

Representative Gifford asserted at his home:

"The feelings of many members of the Democratic party have been hurt by Judge Black's appointment.

"His appointment was unfortunate from the beginning and if it is revealed that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, it will be fitting to demand his resignation.

"Already it appears obvious that he was unsuited for the position in the first place."

BRIDGES' BLAST

Bridges pointed out that while Alabama voters could elect whom they pleased to the U. S. Senate, their decision did not preclude the careful investigation of Black's qualifications he demanded before the appointment was confirmed.

Senator Bridges declared today in a strong statement:

"I take my position because my knowledge of the public career of Mr. Black did not indicate to me that he had the fairness or the tolerance or the judicial temperament which are necessary to a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Black Still Silent: Hunts Books in London

London, Sept. 16 (INS)—Despite the growing furore caused by charges he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black today gave no indication he is planning immediately to answer President Roosevelt's virtual appeal for a statement on the issue.

Tight-lipped, unsmiling and apparently determined to preserve the outward appearance of an American traveler holiday-bent, Black slipped out of the back entrance of his hotel early this afternoon.

Urge Roosevelt Ask Black Quit Supreme Court

plain his present relation with the order, or refuse to repudiate its principles and purposes, I anticipate that the President of the United States will request his resignation.

"Should Justice Black refuse, I would vote to impeach him."

Roosevelt's Advisors Urging Resignation

Washington, Sept. 16 (INS)—Prompt resignation of Justice Hugo L. Black from the Supreme Court was favored today by President Roosevelt's closest advisers.

They said this is the only effective method for ending the national controversy over charges the Alabaman is a life member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Justice Black will return to America around October 1 from a European vacation. No action is anticipated until after he confers with Mr. Roosevelt, since the President is withholding "judgment" until he hears the justice's own explanation of his association with the "Invisible Empire."

The President's advisers were demanding Black's resignation because they felt he placed Mr. Roosevelt in a false light by failing to disclose his Klan connections prior to his appointment to the Supreme Court, if such connections actually existed.

The demand for Black's retirement was based on two grounds. One was that the Klan charges have so "tarred" Black as to impair his impartial service on the court.

The other is that his continued service, under this "tarring," would inject the Klan issue into both the 1938 and 1940 elections, an outcome no Democrat relishes after the defeat of Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 election.

One high administration leader told International News Service:

"Justice Black must resign. He has become a 'white elephant' which the Democratic party cannot afford to carry into any national election.

"Just think of the cartoons that will come whenever Justice Black renders an unpopular verdict in any case in which racial or religious issues are raised. Why, every litigant, facing the loss of a case, will raise the religious or racial issue.

"We simply can't afford to impose such a burden on our party.

FOR PARTY'S GOOD

"Black must resign for the party's good. It is his own fault, because he should have told the President about his Klan connections—and if he had, he never would have been given the appointment."

There was a possibility, though, the President might over-rule his advisers and urge Black to retain his justiceship after hearing the Alabaman's explanations. The alternative would be for Black to condemn racial and religious intolerance and deny membership in the Klan after assuming public office.

High Klan officials always have argued that possession of a "gold grand passport," which Black has been charged with receiving, did not include membership in their organization.

They say the "passport" actually was created so its possessors could deny membership, and that its award did not require the possessor to perform any duties in the Klan.

SAY BLACK IS LIBERAL

Black's friends meanwhile were rallying to his support. They asserted he was free of all religious and racial prejudices. They pointed to his record of appointments as proving this.

They said he was responsible for the appointment of many Catholics and Jews to public offices.

In the list of Black's appointments they said were Dr. Charles N. Whelan, a Birmingham Catholic, as a member of the federal parole board; Joe Lyons, a Mobile Catholic, as collector of customs in that city, and Judge Charles N. Feidelson, Birmingham Jew, as manager of the NLRB regional office in Atlanta.

On top of this, they said, Black's personal stenographer is Miss Anne Butt, of Birmingham, a Catholic, and the justice, they added, is taking Miss Butt with him as his stenographer to his Supreme Court office.

Black 'Witch Burner,' Says Gen. Johnson

Chicago, Sept. 16 (INS)—General Hugh S. Johnson, former head of the defunct NRA, today assailed President Roosevelt's appointment of Hugh Black to the United States Supreme Court. He said:

"When I was a small boy, the boys of the town used to show their contempt for the banker by depositing a ripe, dead cat on the doorsteps of the bank. This was the President's general idea in appointing Black.

"Hugo Black is a known witch burner. He's narrow, prejudiced and class-conscious. Anybody who might have overlooked his cluttered kleagle might have known that, nightie or no nightie, he was all that it takes to make a perfect Ku Kluxer and little more.

"This appointment is a gesture of derision towards the Supreme Court and towards all legal learning. It amounts to contempt of the Supreme Court's high impartiality."

Dorchester Patrol Crash Injures Two

Two Dorchester policemen were seriously injured today when the patrol wagon of Fields Corner station was in collision with an automobile at Ditson street and Arcadia park, Dorchester.

Patrolmen James J. Lavin and Harry P. Hains were taken to City Hospital in a police radio car, the former having been rendered unconscious in the crash.

Patrol Driver Albert Snider and the alleged driver of the automobile, Charles King, of Belfort street, Dorchester, both escaped injury.

LOVE IN DEATH COTTAGE TOLD BY BARTOLINI

Dewing, "they want to blacken the deceased. I object, Your Honor. We're not trying the morals of Grayce Asquith."

"I think it is pertinent as regards the state of mind between the defendant and the deceased," the court ruled, allowing the questioning to proceed.

Bartolini testified that on that day he was in the bathroom in his bare feet. The state has introduced as exhibits two footprints in water-thinned blood and declared to have been made by Bartolini on the bathroom linoleum.

WRAPPED IN CURTAINS

Back in the living-room, Mrs. Asquith asked him to bring her some wood, as she was all out of it, Bartolini declared, and explained that all summer long he had been carrying wood to her, wrapped in old window shades, from the Quincy shade and screen plant above which he lived.

On the next day, Saturday the 19th, he took the wood to her cottage and told her he had to go to Boston to see a lawyer about an automobile case.

She asked him, the witness said, to drop around and pick up "Al Lyons" at his room in St. Botolph street, Back Bay, and bring him to the cottage.

LYONS, WIDOW KISSING

Further detailing his movements, Bartolini testified he left Lyons' home in St. Botolph street about 3 p. m. Saturday, the 19th, and Lyons, complying with requests in a note from the widow which Bartolini had delivered, made some purchases at a 5-and-10 in Weymouth and bought a pint of whiskey.

At the Asquith cottage the trio—Bartolini, Lyons and Grayce—began drinking the whiskey in the living room, but adjourned to the kitchen.

Bartolini related that Lyons and the widow "began kissing," while Bartolini himself rummaged behind the living room clock, got a deck of cards, and showed them card tricks.

The other two continued their kissing, however, so at 7:30 he quit his card tricks, left, and returned to Quincy, he said.

He failed to go near the cottage the rest of the night or on Sunday, he testified.

WENT TO NANTASKET

He was in a Quincy barroom and in the home of a friend Saturday night, he said, and on Sunday went to Nantasket, stopping on the way to deliver some wine to another friend, Julia Lombardi, in Hingham, but being repaid, he said, only with her assertion that the wine was "no good."

At Nantasket he saw a friend named Lorenzo and some others, he declared, and arrived back in Quincy about 3 p. m., having stopped by at Lombardi's on the way.

From then on he vacillated between his room and a Quincy cafe, but was back in his room for the night between 8 and 8:30.

HID MOVES, SAYS STOKES

Last witness for the Commonwealth was Captain John F. Stokes, chief of state detectives, who had charge of the search for the missing widow and the subsequent investigation into her slaying after her dismembered head and legs had been found.

In his testimony Captain Stokes declared that Bartolini, under questioning with regard to his movements on September 19, 20 and 21 of last year, concealed several moves, including a visit to a physician who has testified that Bartolini, on the day after the slaying, had called on him.

Bartolini also had said that on the murder day, September 20 (a Sunday), he had met Vincent Christoforo, also a previous witness, at 2 p. m. in Quincy, whereas Christoforo set the time as about 9 a. m.

TELLS OF LYONS SEARCH

Under cross-examination Captain Stokes declared every possible medium had been exhausted in a search for the still missing John Albert Lyons, World War veteran and suitor of Mrs. Asquith.

It has been testified that Bartolini called for Lyons at his Back Bay home on Saturday, September 19, and took him to the Asquith cottage. Lyons has not been seen since.

The police teletype and radio, newspapers, which Captain Stokes said "are a very good medium for locating missing persons," and police circulars had been utilized in the hunt, with fingerprints and description of Lyons being sent to 18 identification bureaus in this country and to similar bureaus in Europe.

SLAIN, STATE BELIEF

The St. Botolph street room occupied by Lyons, who the state believes may also have been slain, remained after his disappearance just as he left it, Captain Stokes testified.

His clothing was still in the room, as well as his Navy discharge certificate, bonus and other checks, books and photographs.

U. S. Tax Counsel, Forced Out, Hits Evasion Probe

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Morrison Shafroth said today he had been forced out of his position as chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau because he refused to join in the recent investigation of tax avoidance and evasion.

Shortly after Shafroth's resignation had been announced by Secretary Morgenthau, Shafroth issued a brief statement saying that he and his assistant, Russell J. Ryan, had been given "the choice of participating in the presentation of the names (of alleged tax evaders and avoiders) or resigning."

"As a result, Shafroth said, "we tendered our resignations on the 28th of June, 1937."

The investigation into tax evasions and avoidance brought a parade of names high in the financial, theatrical and social worlds before a joint Senate-House inquiry committee.

Shafroth, who said he would return to his Denver law practice, asserted that he and Ryan "were unable to convince ourselves that it was proper to use the bureau of internal revenue as planned in the tax avoidance and evasion investigation."

$50,000 BLAZE IN CAMBRIDGE

Fire which started in a small pile of rags today swept the Leopold Morse Clothing Company store, Harvard square, Cambridge, causing damage estimated at $50,000.

The blaze broke out in the rear of the store where painters are at work. Fire officials said spontaneous combustion was the cause.

Larry Kelley, manager of the store, gave the amount of the damage. He said the store was heavily stocked in anticipation of the opening of Harvard.

He said that 900 suits and 500 pairs of shoes were either destroyed or damaged, together with scores of men's shirts and other wearing apparel.

Firemen battled the blaze for about two hours before it was extinguished.

League to 'Study' HolyLand Partition

Geneva, Sept. 16 (INS)—The League of Nations Council agreed today with the British government that further study should be given to the proposal to divide Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states. A new commission will be sent to Palestine to study the problem, which has aroused opposition from both Jews and Arabs.

Seeks New Air Record

Detroit, Sept. 16 (AP)—Colonel Roscoe Turner, noted speed flier, will seek to break the American and possibly the world records for 100 kilometers Saturday in the Detroit National Air Show.

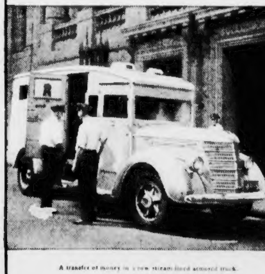
A Contrast in Protection
FOR THE SAFE TRANSFER OF MONEY

Through the arteries of business there flows a constant stream of money. Large sums must be transferred from place to place. The money you use to make a purchase at a department store must pass in safety from store to bank. A few hours later it may be on its way to a wage earner's pay envelope.

Today armored cars equipped with every modern protective device dispatch this great responsibility with commendable efficiency. In contrast to these motorized fortresses stands the memory of "a stout wagon drawn by four horses." This ancient vehicle traveled the highways of New England in the early nineteenth century collecting money from isolated country banks. By way of protection the driver was always accompanied by two sturdy dogs. It was his custom when stopping to make a collection or for refreshment at a tavern to leave the vehicle and its money kegs in complete charge of the dogs. The specie was never molested.



A transfer of money in a new stream-lined armored truck.

Killer Branded As Menace Yet Set Free Here

Howard Long, confessed New Hampshire sex slayer involved in the death of two boys, was released from a Massachusetts institution in October, 1935, in spite of an official record branding him as a "menace to the children of whatever section he may be in," the Boston Evening American learned today.

Meanwhile, in Laconia, N. H., the 32-year-old prisoner admitted responsibility in the death of a second child, 12-year-old Armand Nadeau of Dover, whose battered and frozen body was found in a cellar last December.

This admission came within 24 hours after Long had told police he was the murderer of Mark Neville Jensen, 10, of Laconia.

In this city, the report of the Boston Psychopathic Hospital as to Long's abnormalities was discovered in official state files.

TEXT OF DOCUMENT

Dated November 7, 1930, this document stated:

"In our opinion he (Long) is definitely abnormal, but would not be considered insane. He is a psychopathic personality.

"In view of his deficient intelligence as shown by psychopathic tests, his very inferior reactions and his inability to profit by experience and training, IT IS OUR RECOMMENDATION THAT HE BE COMMITTED TO BRIDGEWATER STATE HOSPITAL AS A DEFECTIVE DELINQUENT.

"It seems that this is the only way to protect society adequately from this individual.

"A prison sentence will merely result in his being released in a short time and he will continue to practice these sexual abnormalities which render him a menace to the children of whatever section he may be in."

BRIGGS LAW TEST

On September 10, 1930, it was also learned, Long was examined in Middlesex County Jail under the provisions of the "Briggs law."

According to records of the state department of mental diseases, the examining doctor indicated the prisoner was mentally defective to such an extent that "this defect would affect his criminal responsibilities."

These reports, it was established, were drafted for the specific purpose of removing Long permanently from society.

FREED ON PROBATION

Yet this admittedly dangerous prisoner was released under a probationary agreement five years later.

He was not paroled, nor was the state board of parole consulted when the petition for his release was argued.

At the time the reports of Long's mental capacity were prepared, Judge James H. Sisk, in Middlesex Superior Court, sentenced the prisoner to Bridgewater after he had pleaded guilty to attacking a 10-year-old Belmont boy with a dangerous weapon.

According to the records, Long was released on a petition filed by Judge Arthur P. Stone of the East Cambridge District Court. Judge Stone said at the time:

"I believe Long would do well. The reports from the institution were that he had shown marked improvement in his psychological tests."

The prisoner's discharge was finally ordered by Judge William G. Rowe after a hearing in Brockton District Court.

Judge Stone represented Long as trustee of a fund left for the prisoner's benefit by his mother, the late Mrs. Sarah F. Long of Washington street, Belmont.

Admitting he had petitioned for Long's release, Judge Stone said today he "saw the boy only once or twice during the five years he was at the institution."

He said Long finally wrote him a letter, asking the judge to help him in obtaining his release. Judge Stone continued:

"I talked to Superintendent (James E.) Warren and a Charles E. Ricker and both of them told me they could make no recommendations in court, saying they never did in that type of case."

According to Judge Stone:

QUOTIENT HIGHER

"They both seemed favorably inclined in this case."

He said Warren and Ricker told him Long's intelligence quotient was "much higher" than when he was placed in the institution.

At the hearing, he continued, "Judge Rowe seemed impressed by the fact Long's intelligence quotient was higher and the fact he had not been drinking for five years."

He quoted Judge Rowe as warning Long "never to take another drink of intoxicating liquor."

Judge Stone said he was asked whether he was willing to take supervision of the boy and told the court:

NOT NOW INSANE

"I could not be responsible for him in any way or take supervision over him."

He said he promised Judge Rowe to "do what he could for the boy." He emphasized further:

"We all believed he would make good."

Judge Stone explained he purchased a gasoline station for Long in Alton, N. H., as "I felt it would be a good place for him."

In conclusion, Judge Stone declared that Long "is definitely not insane."

According to department of correction records, Long was sentenced by Judge Stone to Concord reformatory in April, 1924, for an attack on a ten10-year-old girl. He was paroled at the end of the year.

Judge Stone said today that it was his recollection he did not preside at the case because of his connection with the Long family.

The arrest of Long for the murder of the Jensen boy was a direct result of alert action by Massachusetts Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman.

Digging into department files, Lyman obtained the records of three men who might reasonably be suspected of the brutal slaying of the Laconia child.

Armed with these records, Assistant Commissioner John Murphy proceeded to Laconia to participate in the murder inquiry.

Among the records Murphy carried were those of Long. The latter's arrest and confession followed speedily.

TRAPPED BY PHOTO

The photograph, taken from the clothing of the Nadeau boy when he was found in an abandoned fire-charred barn last November, was flashed in front of Long early today, and ten minutes later he dramatically screamed:

"Don't make me look at that picture again. I'll tell you all about what happened to him."

Long then, according to County Solicitor Thomas McGreal, who played a hunch when he read of Long's confession of the murder of the Jensen boy went to Laconia to question him about the Nadeau boy, confessed he knew the circumstances surrounding Dover's year-old child "murder" mystery.

The Nadeau child, the authorities revealed, was not murdered, if Long's story concerning his death is true.

The child died in a headlong plunge from Long's automobile in a vain effort to escape the tortures Long told authorities he planned to inflict on the child.

COLLECTING LIQUID RUBBER ON FIRESTONE PLANTATIONS IN LIBERIA

From these plantations comes an ever-increasing supply of the world's finest rubber. Money saved here and in manufacturing and distribution enable Firestone to sell first-quality tires at lower prices.

THAT'S WHY YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY IN FIRESTONE STANDARD TIRES

PRICES AS LOW AS $6.40

FIRESTONE builds a first-quality tire made of top grade materials and sells it for less money because Firestone passes savings along to you in the form of extra values. Firestone controls rubber and cotton supplies at their sources, manufactures with greater efficiency and distributes at lower cost. Because of these economies —

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST BLOWOUTS—eight extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord by the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process. By this process every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber. This counteracts dangerous internal friction and heat that ordinarily cause blowouts.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST PUNCTURES—because under the tread are two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords.

YOU GET EXTRA PROTECTION AGAINST SKIDDING—because the tread is scientifically designed.

YOU GET LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE—because of the extra tough, long-wearing tread.

Make your car tire-safe now for fall and winter driving. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires — today's top tire value.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE ON SMOOTH WORN TIRES

DO YOU KNOW

THAT last year highway accidents cost the lives of more than 38,000 men, women and children?

THAT a million more were injured?

THAT more than 40,000 of these deaths and injuries were caused directly by punctures, blowouts and skidding due to smooth, worn, unsafe tires?

Below is section cut from a new Firestone Tire. Note the thick, non-skid protection against skidding, blowouts and punctures. Come in and see a demonstration.

Below is a section cut from a smooth, worn tire, with non-skid protection worn off. Tires in this condition are liable to punctures, blowouts and skidding.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Through the circuitous channel comes word that a state court man, due to face the internal revenue lads from Washington for a quizz on [illegible] and dog racing, got such a rise in temperature that it [illegible] into a nice fit of the jitters . . . This is such a lad as you'll always find [illegible] when things are breaking sweet but who'll [illegible] when the going gets rough at [illegible] . . . Well, everything probably would have been all right if he'd [illegible] a poker face and drooled only to himself but like the frammes who must tell somebody this individual [illegible] hearing he was wanted for a few answers on [illegible] work for dog legislation (and perhaps a bit of a payoff [illegible]) spoke out of turn and [illegible] the kitty from the bag . . . All of which is by way of warning you to watch for something big to drop shortly in the matter of the hounds and racing . . .

FOOTSTEP FOLLOWER

All over town, schoolboy scribes seem to have overlooked a nice Everett H. S. feature . . . It's a quarter-century since old Charlie Brickley booted 'em on the gridiron for this school, and then went on to greater fame at Harvard . . . Now another Charlie Brickley, also with an educated toe, is playing halfback for Everett . . . He's old Charlie's 17-yr-old nephew, is a six-footer and weighs 182 . . . The kid's dad is Wm. J., head of Everett's welfare dept. and a brother of the ex-Harvardian . . . Another brother is running for alderman at Everett . . . But young Charlie, an Everett H. S. junior, is the one to watch . . .

FARE ENOUGH

She wasn't hard on the optics at all and she was taking one of those [illegible] short rides . . . But who ever saw a woman ready with her fare? . . . Behind her there were an impatient half dozen as she fumbled in her handbag making little despairing noises as she came upon everything except what she hunted . . .

Change, coins, letters, what looked like a bankbook, handkerchief, compact, bills, a rabbit's foot, greenbacks and some more junk she riffled desperately, brought out a key and a nickel—and then dropped the bag . . . Red-faced, she dived for the bag, then came up triumphantly with everything and shoved the wrong hand at the motorman . . . It held a key . . .

"Why, madam," he said, "I'm sorry, but I'm a married man."

Los Angeles, Sept. 16—Really exciting is the news that Warner Brothers are planning to put Robert Sheridan's famous old play, "School for Scandal," on the screen.

Sheridan wrote "School for Scandal" and "The Rivals" in 1776 and in this modern day they still hold interest. I don't think you could say that of any other play of that vintage. Hal Wallis has handed "School for Scandal," which has great subtlety, human interest and high moments of comedy, to Maurice Hanline to prepare the adaptation.

Louella O. Parsons

Even more interesting, Bette Davis and Errol Flynn will play the top roles. "School for Scandal" may do for the screen what Minnie Maddern Fiske did for the stage when she revived "The Rivals" some years ago. Anyway, it's movie venture worthwhile.

• • •

M-G-M will concentrate on Rosalind Russell, whose career started auspiciously and then for some reason seemed to stand still. Rosalind, they say, didn't want big starring parts, but preferred to learn screen technique first. Well, that's neither here nor there—the point is the announcement is now being made that she will be starred, and I say it is high time.

Her first under the new arrangement will be in the role of the Russian Sonia in "Arsene Lupin," which follows "The Four Marys."

To think of Victor Moore a few months ago as anything but a comedian was almost like the idea of Babe Hardy playing Hamlet. He has been a top comic on stage and screen for years. Then he went to Para and made "Make Way for Tomorrow" and was so good in a straight role that RKO plans to give him another similar character in "It Couldn't Happen Again," a comedy drama by Mel Riddle, one of our local publicity boys, and Alex Rubin.

Story is about an old marriage license clerk who hands out licenses for twenty years and along with them some good advice.

A line or two: The funniest transatlantic telephone conversation in recent [illegible] zipped over the wires yesterday when Marlene Dietrich phoned Paramount all the way from Wolfgang, Austria, for a dozen pair of false eyelashes. She can't get the right shade in Europe! . . . Accidentally, and accidentally is what I mean, W. C. Fields made a hole in one on the golf course—a thing he has been trying to do for 40 years. When it actually happened, Bill threw down his golf clubs and ran like mad off the course followed by his open-mouthed caddy.

Here's one for the book: Ginger Rogers' uncle, Vinton Haworth, has worn a mustache for 11 years. He was under contract to RKO for a time, but they let him go. Haworth decided to see if he could chance his luck by shaving off his lip decoration, and believe it or not, he was recalled to RKO next day.

Third Week For Thin Ice At Keith's

"Thin Ice" with Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power, has been held over at the Keith Memorial for a third week, beginning today. The companion feature, "Annapolis Salute," featuring James Ellison and Marsha Hunt, is also being held over.

A delightful romance of mistaken identity affording many hilariously funny situations, "Thin Ice" concerns the romance of a beautiful skating star who falls in love with a man she believes to be a reporter, but who, in reality, is a prince.

Sonja has come to a hamlet in the Swiss Alps to accept a position as skating instructress at a magnificent hotel. Prince Rudolph also arrives to settle a neutrality pact. He goes out to ski and meets Sonja. Their first meeting is only casual, but the news quickly spreads throughout the village that Sonja is being favored by Tyrone. In view of this, agents of two foreign countries enter into a bargain with her uncle to win the girl to their side.

The romance continues to grow, with Sonja still unmindful of the fact that she is being courted by a prince. Complication piles upon complication, the situation clearing in a happy conclusion with the arrival of the prime minister.

Arthur Treacher, Raymond Walburn, Joan Davis, Sig Rumann, Alan Hale, Leah Ray, Melville Cooper, Maurice Cass and George Givot are featured in the supporting cast of "Thin Ice."

The bitter rivalry between two young naval cadets, which comes to a head when they both fall in love with a pretty girl visiting Annapolis during June Week, forms the basis of "Annapolis Salute."

The story concerns the feud of two midshipmen, one the son of a petty officer in the navy, the other the scion of a wealthy family who has promised to remain at the Academy merely long enough to get his enemy dismissed.

The cast includes Harry Carey, as the father of James Ellison, Marsha Hunt as the girl, Van Heflin as the scion of a wealthy family, and Arthur Lake, Dick Hogan, Ann Hovey and Marilyn Vernon.

Ozzie Nelson Heads Gala Stage Bill

Ozzie Nelson and his Orchestra, one of radio's foremost musical aggregations, Harriet Hilliard, singing star of stage, screen and radio, and Cherry and June Preisser, the dancing darlings of Ziegfeld's "Follies," head the new stage show starting today at the RKO Boston theater.

James Gleason and Zasu Pitts in RKO Radio's riotous comedy, "Forty Naughty Girls," will be the new screen attraction.

Ozzie Nelson, the noted blonde maestro, and his orchestra, have been the feature of many coast-to-coast network programs, the latest of which was the nationally popular Ripley's "Believe It or Not" radio hour.

Harriet Hilliard, Hollywood's newest star, first starred in vaudeville with Ken Murray and Bert Lahr. She earned national reputation as a featured songstress with Ozzie Nelson's Orchestra and then landed an RKO Radio contract under which she has appeared in "Follow the Fleet," "New Faces of 1937" and "The Life of the Party."

Cherry and June Preisser have succeeded in achieving enviable fame due to their sensational dancing ability.

Adapted from Stuart Palmer's detective novel, "Forty Naughty Girls" presents his famous detective character, Oscar Piper, in the person of James Gleason, in a series of hilarious episodes highlighted with songs, dances and pretty girls. Hildegarde Withers, his vis-a-vis in these riotous happenings, is played by Zasu Pitts.

Piper and Miss Withers are attending a theatrical performance when word is sent them that the press agent of the show has been murdered. After rounding up several suspects, Piper is stumped when they all prove to be innocent. Hildegarde falls into a series of clues, which, after several hilarious incidents, lead to detection of the murderer.

A GIRL OF THE Paris Streets

VINCENT SHEEAN, author of the best seller Personal History, says, "The story The Civil Rites is about the best I have ever written."

The Editor of Pictorial Review-Delineator thought so too. You will find it in this October issue. It is the story of a girl of the Paris streets who, despite her ill fame, had a mysteriously helpful influence over many men, including intellectuals.

THE CIVIL RITES

Author of the best seller PERSONAL HISTORY

IF YOUR SON OR BROTHER FALLS IN LOVE WITH A FAST GIRL... WHAT CAN YOU DO ABOUT IT?

You've met a young man like Jim before. He's the one who, when the father dies, shoulders the load. It means a lot to his mother and sisters what sort of a girl he marries.

Jim Fleming had two girls. Judy was fast. Mary was sweet, wholesome, a real helpmate. Mary had spunk too, and it is because of that spunk that this story, Family Man, becomes the kind of story that gives you a pleasant glow when you finish it.

Family Man is the first of a series of delightful stories in which you meet all the seven Flemings—a typical American family. Be sure to read

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

The resignation of Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady in order to take a high-salaried job with the Radio Corporation raises with more than usual emphasis a question that is growing more and more important as time goes on.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The question is far bigger than Mr. McGrady [illegible] reputation [illegible] chosen work. The [illegible] Roosevelt began his career [illegible] The [illegible] have been Secretary of Labor and Miss Perkins not been given [illegible] against the wishes of organized labor hardly enters, either.

[illegible]

No Career in Public Service for Ambitious Man

[illegible]

He [illegible] satisfied [illegible] been given a career [illegible] The salary [illegible] for a man of Mr. McGrady's ability [illegible] and great opportunities.

Natural for McGrady To Take Step He Has

A man of my generation instinctively thinks of what happened to Cortelyou and Loeb, who started as secretaries for Theodore Roosevelt, rose to cabinet membership and then to highly paid jobs in industry and business.

It is a preference [illegible] that Mr. McGrady should feel, as he admitted in his letter to the President, that his resignation is made necessary by compelling personal obligations which can no longer be neglected.

For a time he felt that his "public duty outweighed his private need." Now he can "let go with good conscience."

It is pretty disgraceful that an able man should be compelled to feel that way about continuing in a government job.

As a matter of fact, our government salaries seem still to be regulated on the assumption—which dates from Andrew Jackson—that for the rank and file of the ordinary and mediocre citizen they offer security and permanence and protection and, therefore, are probably better than our wheel-horses of society could earn in any other way.

That is the secret of the civil service job and the government position.

Private Business Skims the Cream of Ability

But it is far from doing justice to the exceptionally able man. Private industry can outbid government every time. The result is that, unless a man has independent means or is willing to sacrifice his family's needs pretty brutally, we seldom get the best available men.

We get the skim milk in the public service, while private business skims the cream. That is why our private business is the most progressive and efficient in the world and our government is what it is.

The time must come when government service must be paid, not according to the small needs and ambitions of the run-of-the-mine citizens but according to the abilities and the necessities of exceptionally good workers.

Such a man as Mr. McGrady—or Joseph P. Kennedy, for instance—is exceptional. We need such men permanently in our government. But we must make it worth their while.

HONEYMOON HINGES ON PRESIDENT'S PLANS

Planning their honeymoon today—subject to approval of President Roosevelt—this bride-and-bridegroom-to-be seemed to be cheerfully sure of White House co-operation in their wedding arrangements, as they posed smilingly for the Boston Evening American cameraman. You'll have guessed, of course, who the sweethearts are. She's pretty Miss Arlene Eade of Lynn. He's Thomas Qualters, President Roosevelt's personal bodyguard. The marriage will be September 20, and the newlyweds will take a motor trip to Lake Placid—unless a presidential journey to the West should call Qualters back to his job sooner than he expects.

GUARD Here to WED

QUALTERS AID TO PRESIDENT

With a few days off "for marriage," Thomas Qualters, President Roosevelt's personal bodyguard, arrived in town today and was met by his bride-to-be, Miss Arlene Eade, of Lynn.

The nuptials will take place on Monday.

But the question of a honeymoon was still very much in doubt, as the bridegroom may have to leave his bride on their wedding day to hurry back to the side of the President when he departs on a trip to the Pacific coast.

"I don't know whether we will be able to take a wedding trip or not," Qualters said.

"I expect to hear from the President by Monday. The Bermuda trip is out. We had to cancel our reservations.

"If I do have some time off we will probably make a motor trip to Lake Placid."

Qualters said President Roosevelt had wished him [illegible] departure from the capital.

HOME IN CAPITAL

The bride-to-be said she already had her home set up on Connecticut avenue in Washington.

On her wedding day she will wear a bridal gown of white moire and carry lilies of the valley with white orchids.

Her sister, Loretta McKinney, who will serve as maid of honor, will be dressed in [illegible]

The [illegible] bridesmaids will wear jade green [illegible] and carry bronze chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have sent a silver tea service as their gift to the young couple.

The President [illegible] attend the ceremony.

CEREMONY IN LYNN

"Mrs. Roosevelt tried her hardest to attend," Miss Eade said. "But she has to lecture that day and couldn't cancel it. But Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt will attend."

The wedding will take place at St. Mary's [illegible] Fred [illegible] the Roosevelt [illegible] will be best man.

Following the ceremony, to be performed by Monsignor Joseph F. McGlinchey, a reception will be held at the New Ocean House.

Two hundred guests have been invited.

[illegible]

The state of Massachusetts [illegible] said [illegible] if you can produce half again as many young men and women who possess the [illegible] initiative, resourcefulness and character required for leadership as you now are producing, [illegible] those we already have.

We are told that upward of [illegible] employable persons in Massachusetts are without jobs. The estimate seems high, but take the figures at its face value. It means that what we need is about 12,500 more employers like those we already have.

There are quite as many business opportunities today as have existed in any period of our history. There may be even more because the rapid pace of invention and rising standards of living create needs and markets for those who are sufficiently alert to see them."

[illegible] "Life begins at 40," Mrs. Harrower decided to forsake pink teas and get a job behind the footlights.

With the full approval and [illegible] husband, Pascal Ramsey Harrower, she started out and did the agencies, walking straight into her present part which was tailor-made for her. Mrs. Harrower plays the role of the society matron mother of the hero.

QUITS SOCIETY

As she sat in her apartment in the [illegible] on Commonwealth avenue today, the attractive white-haired matron told her story.

"I decided I had to do something to relieve the monotony of bridge and the other things. And I had had stage experience before my marriage.

"Of course, it took courage. White hair, forty. But then I had read 'Life Begins at Forty.' I decided to find out if it were true.

"And there were no lifting of eyebrows. My friends thought it a grand idea. I literally walked off the street into the part."

ONLY ONE REGRET

That was eight months ago and Mrs. Harrower has seriously given up her social career.

"Miss it? Not one bit," she replied. "Except perhaps the breakfast in bed. Those are nice."

Mrs. Harrower's father-in-law is a canon of St. John's the Divine in New York.

"He's a very lively gentleman of 87 and I even have his approval," she said.

Reveal Wedding Of Joan Harding

The marriage of Joan Harding, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Harding of Fells Road, Winchester, which took place last Saturday in Reno, Nevada, was revealed today. The bridegroom is Robert H. Davis, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart J. Davis of Hornitos, Ca.

The bride, a frequent competitor in North Scituate, Cohasset and Metropolitan Club horse shows, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. A. Schmidt of Reno. It was in Nevada that she met her husband-to-be.

The Harding family in Winchester announced that they had been aware of the wedding plans for some time. The couple will reside in Hornitos, Cal.

Shot by Officer, To Go on Trial

Suffolk County authorities today prepared for the trial of Francis J. O'Keefe, who was shot by Special Officer Vernon L. White last July 24 when he allegedly resisted arrest.

O'Keefe was indicted on three counts of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder, assault and battery upon a police officer and carrying a revolver. His companion, Victor Friedburg, was indicted on charges of assault and battery upon a police officer and assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to commit murder.

Boston police also received today an appeal from Mrs. J. Sappington of Maryland avenue, St. Louis, to try and locate two sisters of George Hunt, whose body lies in the St. Louis city morgue awaiting a claimant.

In between buyers held sway and moved prices higher in unexpectedly easy fashion. Given half a chance by the news it now looks as though a new wave of liquidation will be avoided. An ideal type of action over the next few sessions would encompass a quiet sliding back and forth of prices in a fairly restricted area. This would result in building a firm foundation through gradual accumulation by strong buyers while draining off any remaining muddled accounts.

The second are away oversold and could come back very fast . . . But the utilities have been in a much longer bear trend and appear the more thoroughly sold out . . . They must be thin on the upside in so far as offerings go and once started should attract public buying . . . Finally, as a chartist, we are impressed with the action of the leading operating companies and holding concerns during the past week or ten days . . . In very few cases have the early lows of the period been violated and good bases have formed.

Vote Today On New Haven Plan

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission voted today to permit a committee of bondholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to file its plan for reorganizing that road.

Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie, on his own initiative, refused to accept the plan last week during reorganization proceedings on the ground the committee did not represent 10 per cent of any class of security holders.

The plan was presented last week by Arthur Garfield Hays, New York attorney. Generally, it provides that ownership of the carrier would be taken from stockholders and lodged with holders of the carriers' bonds.

Rukeyser Told of Labor

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1937, by Boston Evening American

[illegible] F. McGrady [illegible]

"I have received 300 letters from workers and union officials. They regard my coming here as an experiment. Labor feels that it will have representation when I am at business meetings. It recognizes that I speak the language of workers and am thoroughly familiar with their aspirations."

* * *

"What good are the finest machinery and plants unless you have cooperative human beings working in them? In the old days management used to be concerned mainly with the so-called aristocracy of labor, the skilled workers. But recently the development of mass production has [illegible] workers in a position whereby a discontented [illegible] holding up the production line [illegible]

"Industrial relations has become a genuine profession. Some fine men are in the work, but in the past perhaps too many of them came from the academic world or from the management side. Some of them had a disposition to talk down to labor. I speak the language of the unions and I know that there are many intelligent, well-informed men among the union leadership and membership. Since the depression especially many who otherwise would have gone into the professions have drifted into the labor movement."

Mr. McGrady, does your acceptance of a post with a large corporation signify your belief that real cooperation between workers and management is practicable?"

"Yes, of course," he replied. "I have always felt that there must be a real partnership between employers and workers. In the partnership the workers may be expected to contribute efficient effort. If workers overreach themselves and destroy the employer, they are obviously hurting themselves by depriving themselves of a livelihood.

"By the same token, if the employers seek to oppress and underpay workers, they are depriving industry of its best customers for its products. It's the demand on the part of workers and their families for more and better things, which underlies our national prosperity. Workers not only want more purchasing power but they expect to work fewer hours.

"In the circumstances, I can understand why old fashioned employers are puzzled. There has been in the last 10 years little less than a revolution in labor relations. Workers do not want benefits handed down to them paternalistically. They prefer to go into conference with their employer, and candidly discuss what they think they are entitled to have."

Margaret Harding Eustis Weds In Milton Church Ceremony

By BETTY ALDEN

THE OLD ADAGE about changing the name isn't bothering Margaret Harding Eustis, for she has changed two letters in her last name by becoming the bride of Thomas Gray Curtis . . . Eustis and Curtis are so much alike that Peggy will be able to write her signature with the customary flourish right from the start and need not practice her new name over and over again on odd scraps of paper as many girls have to do . . . Peggy was married to Mr. Curtis in the First Parish Church in Milton this afternoon . . . The Rev. Vivian [illegible] officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Milton home of Frederic A. Eustis, father of the bride . . . The estate has the engaging name of Appleacroft . . .

MRS. T. G. CURTIS [illegible]

Miss Eustis wore her mother's wedding dress of cream embroidered chiffon over satin, a coronet of orange blossoms and a veil of Brussels lace which belonged to her great-aunt, Mrs. Augustus Hemenway [illegible] . . . bouquet was of lilies of the valley and [illegible] . . . Her sisters, Mrs. Edward Sturgis, Jr., of Brookline, Mrs. Winthrop Hi[illegible] of Cambridge and [illegible] Eustis were [illegible] attendants . . . Their gowns were [illegible] of deep blue moire [illegible]

[illegible]

Debs Flock to Martha Young's Party

THE DEBUTANTES [illegible] new fall clothes, are a fascinating [illegible] . . . Yesterday a large number attended Martha Young's [illegible] The Country Club [illegible] Jane Young [illegible] sister [illegible] arrived in Boston [illegible] the night before at Hoboken . . .

[illegible] girls are frivolous bits of femininity with thoughts and interests [illegible] from Europe with trunks full of [illegible] creations of fashion [illegible] wearing an extreme Parisian [illegible] . . . started right in on a shopping expedition in town getting ready for her sister's party . . . and arrived at The Country Club just in the nick of time looking very chic in a rust wool dress with a mannish black felt beret and a new coiffure she acquired somewhere in her round of the shops . . .

Nancy Peabody was particularly happy to be back on the scene of debutante activity, after a vacation in Canada . . . She arrived with Olive McIlvain, who makes her debut tomorrow and who looked very petite and feminine in a bright green dress figured with small black dots and a tiny black velvet turban . . .

Hilary Lunt set off her green bolero dress with a mink fur piece and one of the new poke bonnet type hats . . . to say nothing of a spray of green orchids which had been part of her corsage at the wedding on Tuesday of her step-sister, Faith Donaldson . . . Hilary's companions were Helen Blanchard in a bright rust wool dress with a brown Tyrolean hat, and Polly Merrill, who is just back from Philadelphia where she was awarded the national girls' sportmanship trophy . . . an honor which means something, considering that the best junior tennis players in the country were competing for it . . .

* * *

She's the 'Carrot Top' of New Debs

THERE ALWAYS seem to be a vivacious red head in each season's roster of debutantes . . . last year Mary Porter Wardwell filled the bill . . . and now Patricia Calkins seems destined to be the "carrot top" of the 1937-38 group . . . She wore a tweed ensemble of the soft olive green that so well becomes one of her coloring, and was a bundle of smiles and enthusiasm as she arrived with Nancy Stevens of Westwood . . .

Katharine Woods and Catherine DuBois, an attractive pair, exuberantly greeted Priscilla Pierce of Portsmouth, one of last winter's debs, who came down for the party . . . Betsy Tower is still as vivacious and bewitching as a year ago when she was just on the threshold of her first year out . . . Others in the chic crowd of girls were Ellen Moseley, a beautiful cross fox scarf over the shoulders of her burgundy wool ensemble . . . Jean Haladay in a brilliant plaid wool . . . Amy Ranney and Elinor Petri . . .

COMINGS AND GOINGS OF BOSTON'S GLOBE-TROTTING SOCIALITES . . . Mrs. Francis W. Bird, with her son and daughters, have returned from a vacation in Europe and are finishing out the month at their summer place in Wianno before returning to East Walpole . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell concluded their stay at Hyannisport yesterday when they returned to their apartment at the Vendome . . . Before setting sail for Paris, Mrs. Bernard C. Carter and her son, Bernard, Jr., are making a visit at Yarmouthport with her father, Thomas C. Thacher . . . Mrs. Carter, whose husband is a member of J. P. Morgan & Co., in Paris, has enjoyed quite a reunion with members of her family this summer . . .

COUNTRY CLUB DEBUT THRILLS HER

A HAPPY GIRL was Martha Young as Boston's new debutantes journeyed to The Country Club to assist in her official entrance into society's ranks. Young Men, Like Blessings, Brighten as They Take Their Flight

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I never knew, till we broke our friendship, how much I cared for him," has become such an old story to this column that I often wonder why some sort of TRIAL BREAKAGE hasn't been invented to help a girl decide whether the boy friend she turned down isn't the ONLY ONE after all.

We've had trial marriages, trial engagements, books sent on trial by publishing houses. Why shouldn't we have TRIAL QUARRELS, to help young people [illegible] "I never [illegible]"

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I'm the most unhappy girl in the world. Last week I was bridesmaid at a wedding where I should have been the bride.

"Once the groom and I were engaged, but we were always arguing and quarreling over the silliest things. My best friend sympathized with him, and last week they were married.

"I think neither of them guessed how much their marriage cut me up. I'm supposed to be hard boiled, and yet I've cried myself to sleep every night since their engagement was announced.

"Now I have [illegible] to marry, and I'm looking around for something to interest me. [illegible]

Linda went home, with the blue and white dress in a stiff lavender and silver pasteboard box.

Mrs. Perry looked for the price tag and shook her head worriedly.

"You oughtn't to take anything so expensive. I didn't mind the other things so much—but this—this is different."

"Oh [illegible] nothing to them," Linda said, lightly.

"DID I?" Of course I did."

"Well, naturally anyone would. But I don't believe you did more than speak to him, so I didn't know that you even saw him. You certainly didn't dance with him!"

"Not very much," Linda giggled. And when she saw that Constance wasn't clowning, she was talking about Glenn's BROTHER. It took some explaining to get it all straight.

Harvard Shows Signs Of Emerging from Football Doghouse

HARVARD'S NEATLY BARBERED HOPEFULS emerged from their camphor chips and cotton wool for the first autumn football practice and set to work forming figures and quadrilles with scarcely any promptings from the coaches. There was no ceremonial haranguing of the candidates on the spiritual value of winning football games and the [illegible] calamity of losing them, as used by the late P. D. Nor was there any [illegible] on the grass, or [illegible] by the counts, or [illegible] the Flag as was the in[illegible] exercises under Arnold Horween and Eddie Casey in the stiff and [illegible] when Harvard football was less of a contest than a juvenile [illegible].

Harlow may have had an eye on 1937 when he started building in 1935. So this may be one of his chef d'oeuvres, or masterpieces, of a tough and rugged team, perfect in the small details of blocking and tackling. Though, of course, it will not be a chef d'oeuvre as he has known such things while coaching at Penn State, Colgate and Western Maryland, where kids who looked as though they had derby hats stuffed up their sleeves had a habit of wandering into the registrar's office and enrolling in the hay-harvesting course.

FRANKIE RYAN, THE GENIAL PRESS STEWARD who makes journalism quite painless with his multigraphed hand-outs, shows that Harvard could field a varsity right at this moment which is 100 per cent veteran from the last Yale game. Coach Sheehan Hopes the Old Adage 'Big Things Come in Small Packages' Turns Out True

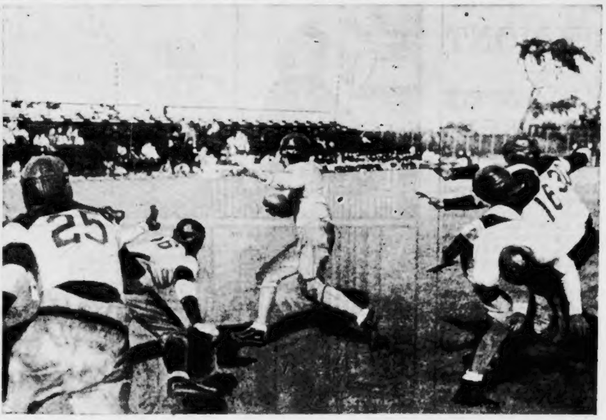
Mort "Red" Buckley uses a bit of his hockey experience in cutting as he side-steps a would-be tackler in one of Cambridge Latin's practice sessions. Buckley was an all-scholastic choice on the hockey team last winter.



Reversing his field, Walter Boudreau gained about three yards for the Cambridge High team through the Belmont High line in a scrimmage session. Boudreau started out on an end run but, spotting the hole, reversed his field and cut through the line. He was brought down by the tackler shown coming up in the foreground.

Walter Boudreau will be doing some nocturnal booting tomorrow when the Cambridge Latin School football team opens the season at Russell Field, Cambridge. Boudreau saw a lot of service in the Cantab backfield last season and is expected to be one of Coach Jack Sheehan's mainstays this year.

Home Magic Slips From Red Sox

By JOE CASHMAN

Every edition of Tom Yawkey's Red Sox has set records for inconsistency and the current one is no exception.

Up to the end of August, the Croninmen were the best home club and one of the worst road outfits in the circuit.

But for no apparent reason, it's just the other way around now. Last week the Fenway flock staged its most successful jaunt of the season. Invading New York and Philadelphia, it walked off with four out of six games.

On the other hand, it has suddenly lost its famed home touch. So far this month it has dropped five verdicts in seven starts on its own back yard.

BOYS LET GROVE DOWN

Earlier in the season such a shift in tactics wouldn't have made much, if any, difference. A victory on the road would have meant as much as a win at home.

It makes a whale of a difference at this particular stage of the campaign, however, what with the natives having 15 of their remaining 22 tilts to play up on Jersey street and being only a half game above fifth place on this, their third off day of the week.

The Croninmen must have shown plenty of fight and hustle to come back after losing a doubleheader in the Yankee Stadium and go on to even the count with the world's champions and clean up a two-game series in Philadelphia.

Judging from their mid-week showing here, though, they left that pep on the road or temporarily mislaid it during their two-day loaf.

They lacked life, color, spirit and every other characteristic of a winning team in the melee with the White Sox, the loss of which knocked them four full games back of the third-place entry from Chicago.

Robert Moses Grove, while hit harder than usual, made a creditable bid for his fifth straight and 16th win of the season, but his mates passed up two or three opportunities to give him a nice lead and then let him down defensively so that he had to give up the struggle in the seventh when the hostiles put over three runs to sew up a 5 to 3 verdict.

DALLESANDRO'S MUFF

Our heroes could collect only six hits off "Spec" Dietrich and Clint Brown.

They had three runners stranded in the second, and nobody could rescue Ben Chapman, who made three of the six safeties, when he tripled with one out in the sixth.

Meanwhile, they weren't relieving the pressure on Grove's ancient arm by their support afield.

Struggling to protect a one-run lead, "Lefty" found three White Sox on bases with only one out in the seventh when there should have been runners on only first and second and two out. He wiggled brilliantly out of that hole without being scored upon.

But he didn't have enough left to hold off the enemy any longer, when Nick Dallesandro missed a fly that looked like a routine out and the Pale Hose as a result put the tying run on third and the winning marker on second with nobody out in the seventh.

"Dixie" Walker followed with a triple, and there went your old ball game.

INDIANS HERE TOMORROW

The fifth-place Indians, who'll be virtually tied for fourth if they beat the Yanks today, come to town tomorrow for two single games.

The Sox must regain their former Fenway invincibility and at least split that series if they want to finish in the money.

Originality Sought In Contest Stories

Originality of subject matter and originality of expression are important to the success of good story writing.

Wherefore judges will be looking primarily for originality in the stories now being submitted in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser School Sports Story Contest.

Great authors, whether in the sports world or the realm of fiction or history, are those who have developed a certain style which distinguish them from all others.

So it is our judges' hope to find many real stylists in the American-Advertiser contest fold, boys and girls who can take their football teams or features relating to the team, and mold their essays into readable, newsy and entertaining columns.

If you are one of New England high school students, whether boy or girl, then you're eligible to submit a team football story.

Starting in next Sunday's Advertiser, one story will be published daily in the Boston American, the author's by-line to head his or her product.

To all those writers whose stories are accepted and published, pairs of tickets to either Boston College or Harvard football games of this fall will be awarded.

Game Little Cantab Eleven Awaits Somerville Opener

Teams to Play Under Lights

If the adage, "Big things come in small packages," is true, Jack Sheehan's Cambridge Latin gridsters are going to set the schoolboy sports world afire this fall.

Mentor Sheehan has a varsity squad of 35 stalwarts, all of whom rate the fight and the hustle to promote rumpus with an opponent eleven.

Few of the boys, however, can make the scales groan when it comes time for recording poundage.

Horace "Hasty" Roewen, veteran right tackle, carrying 185 pounds, is by far the heaviest man on the squad. He's 50 pounds heavier than the smallest fellow on the first team, Fred Coolen, who does well when he makes the weights click at the 135-pound mark.

Yet, Coolen is a typical Cantab footballer. He's a little fellow but he packs dynamite.

Just now he's holding down the important right halfback job on the No. 1 eleven, and Coach Sheehan claims he is one of the grandest ball toters the University City school has ever had.

Chunky Walter Boudreau, back from last year's eleven and another of the now-famous Boudreau family—five of the boys have starred as all-around athletes at Latin—is holding down the fullback berth.

Boudreau is the big punch in the Latin offensive. He does everything well. His passes are accurate and speedy, and he kicks and runs with rare ability. If he has a big season, Latin will sponsor many a surprise triumph this autumn.

DICK GAYNE CAPTAIN

The signal-calling honors are due to rest on the shoulders of Frankie Bradley, a chap small in physical makeup but a gridster who possesses loads of intelligence.

A fine student in the class room, Frankie's gray matter should produce wonders with the Cantab gridders.

Wasn't it the immortal Knute Rockne who once said, "Give me a smart quarterback, and I'll give you a championship football team."

The Red and Black should have an ace blocking back in Morton "Red" Buckley, who is due to show his wares from the left halfback post.

Standing close to six feet in height and tipping the scales at 160 pounds, Buckley has an ideal build for a blocking back.

What's more, he's the type of fellow who shines most when the going is the toughest. Bumping the opposition around is just child's play to the flaming red head.

Moving into the line, Tony De Milia, a fine looking Italian lad of 150 pounds, is in the center spot. Tony, a member of the '36 outfit, plays a smooth all-around game. He tackles hard on the defense, and his charge and passing on the offensive are better than average.

Captain Dick Gayne, 165 pounds, and Glynn Penduyer, 165 pounds, hold forth from the guard slots. Both boys are two-year veterans and their play should be a big item in the Latin doings this year.

This much can be said of Captain Gayne. He's got all the spark and pep for a successful leader. Every Latin footballer should find inspiration and encouragement in his leadership during the approaching campaign.

RANGY ENDS

Bill McGoldrick and "Hasty" Roewen work out of the tackle slots. Both are well-built boys who saw service last year. While McGoldrick has still much to learn about his position, Roewen has the makings of an All-Scholastic tackle.

End berths are slated to go to Ray Guild and John Orr, a couple of rangy fellows.

Guild, a substitute on the '36 eleven, goes 165 pounds in weight and works on the left side of the line, while Orr brings the scales up to 152 pounds and likes the right side of the forward wall.

Johnny King, 153-pound tackle; Joe Sheehan, John Mahoney and Allen Dutton, 145-pound ends; Larry Mahoney, John Randall, Bob Briton, Herb Boudreau and Fred Fallon, 145-pound halfbacks are other boys who show great promise of breaking into the regular Latin lineup.

EXPECT GOOD YEAR

With Latin opening its 1937 schedule tomorrow night when it stacks up against Art McManus' Somerville High eleven in a floodlight tilt at Russell Field in North Cambridge, Coach Sheehan, Assistant Coaches Adam Elcewicz and "Tweet" Reardon, Captain Gayne and Student Manager George Dynan are all confident that their team is headed for its first of a number of '37 triumphs.

Boudreau Looms As C. L. S. Ace

Cambridge Latin's schedule for the 1937 season follows:

Sept. 17—Somerville at Latin (8:30).
Sept. 25—Latin at Newton.
Oct. 11—Rindge at Latin (8 [illegible])
Oct. 22—Brookline at Latin.
Oct. 30—Latin at Nashua, N. H.
Nov. 6—Latin at Leominster.
Nov. 12—Boston College High at Latin.
Nov. 20—Latin at Melrose.
Nov. 25—Latin at Wakefield (10 a. m.)

This is another in a series of articles on school football teams to appear daily in the Boston Evening American. Prospects at Rindge Tech high school, with pictures of the hopefuls, will appear tomorrow. Watch for your school.

CHELSEA'S Grid Season OPENS TONIGHT

The mighty schoolboy football parade is on the march again!

A capacity crowd of 8000 persons is expected to be on hand when Chelsea's Red Devils collide with New Bedford Vocational under the floodlights in the first schoolboy grid tilt of the 1937 season at the beautiful Chelsea Memorial Stadium.

Late this afternoon William "Bill" Benneally, faculty manager of Chelsea High, announced that tickets for the game were selling like the proverbial "hot cakes" and said that it would be the biggest opening contest in the history of Chelsea High.

Chelsea, with a veteran lineup, shouldn't find too much difficulty in grabbing off its first triumph of the year. Coach Frank Garvey's gridsters should take the game by at least a couple of touchdowns.

In tonight's game the Red Devils' line will show Dante Decaire and Harry Sheinbite, ends; Jerry Noonand and Co-Captain Lon Engbar, tackles; Bill Sartorelli and John Sullivan, guards, and Tom Evans, center.

Golden Glove King In 'Irish' Show

The opening amateur boxing tournament of the season, to be held under the auspices of the Irish American A. A. at the Boston Arena next Monday night, is daily shaping up like a championship meeting. Every mail brings in entries of several boys who have made a name for themselves in the New England "pure" ranks.

Among the latest standouts to enter were Herve Liberty of Manchester, N. H., the New England Golden Glove flyweight titleholder; Arthur Lortie, Manchester, N. H., 118 pounds; Ralph Cormier, Manchester, N. H., and Tommy Moran of Amesbury, 126; Henry Ploshl, Amesbury, 147; Melvin Hanning, South Boston, middleweight; Michael Romanovitz of Peabody and Phil Wineberg of Chelsea, heavyweight.

HARVARD Uncovers 'Find' IN MACDONALD

a favorable reception.

While Harlow isn't committing himself on Macdonald in speech, his attitude toward him is much apparent by the very fact that Macdonald today is in the second team backfield, having forged ahead of lettermen.

It's further apparent by the amount of attention that the head coach pays this boy who is without any previous varsity experience.

He is, more than any other, the back being most closely watched by interested observers.

He looks slim, but he's wiry and strong. He's built more like what you'd expect of the ideal end. But his potentialities are greatest where Harlow is using him.

There's plenty of competition ahead before he reaches a starting position, what with Arthur Oakes, George Roberts, Austin Harding and Darkhorse Charlie Houghton to contend with.

But Macdonald has three years of varsity play in front of him. Before the first of these has been concluded, the name of Torbert Macdonald should be well known and favorably to all Harvard's legion of well wishers.

Jim Londos Returns | $65,000 to Ambers
Harvard Football | $195,000 Ring Show

By JACK CONWAY

JIM LONDOS, Greek heavyweight wrestler, has returned to the United States after a world's tour lasting two years . . . During this time Londos wrestled in South America, Africa and in India . . . Spiros Jstamos of Boston, during a recent visit to Greece, spent much time with Londos, whom he still regards as the best wrestler in the world.

MR. BOSTON

Benny Ginsburg, of the Club Mayfair, and Jack Dempsey may soon become partners in a Miami Beach show spot . . . Benny and Jack operated hotels at Miami Beach last winter . . . When Dempsey visits Boston he always drops in at the Club Mayfair to greet Benny.

Dick Harlow believes his Harvard football team will go places this year . . . Harlow has schooled the Crimson football players in the fundamentals of the gridiron game, and has improved their spirit 100 per cent . . . Dick will be satisfied if he can equal the record set up by the Harvard crew this year . . . Harvard has as high scholastic requirements as any college in the country . . . It still believes that colleges are supposed to be schools of learning before being places represented by football teams . . . One must admire Harvard for being sincere in its stand on athletics, even though its policy has resulted in some of its teams getting terrific lickings.

Lax Requirements for Stars

THERE is the story about the Western player that boasted of an All-America rank . . . At the end of the football season the All-America star was tendered a banquet by his home town folks . . . He left the banquet hall during the speech making . . . His head coach, who was also a guest at the dinner, found him crying in a corridor.

"Why should you cry tonight?" demanded the coach . . . "You are being honored by your home town, and are looked up to as one of the greatest football players in America."

"That's true," said the player as he tried to control his sobs . . . "I would be entirely happy if only I could read and write."

Perhaps this story is a slight exaggeration, but there have been star players on some of the Western and Southern teams who would have had difficulty passing an entrance examination to a high school . . . Some of them have still had the dust of the coal mines in their eyes as they demanded their first pay checks.

The period of football hysteria existing ten years ago was responsible for this condition . . . Some colleges felt that the quickest way to establish themselves as great institutions of learning was by hiring a winning football team . . . Many of them have since found out their mistake, and even gridiron greats are now obliged to know a little something about reading, writing and arithmetic.

Pedro Montanez Real Title Threat

PEDRO MONTANEZ, Puerto Rico lightweight, is a real threat for Lou Ambers in their 15-round bout at the Carnival of Champions at the Polo Grounds, New York, on next Thursday night . . . I have seen Montanez in some of his New York starts, and have been impressed by his fistic style . . . He is an aggressive, two fisted warrior who attacks from every angle.

Ambers will receive $65,000 for defending his title against Montanez. This is the largest purse paid to a lightweight champion in years. The size of the purse was the inducement required to get Ambers to risk a meeting with Montanez. The latter will be paid $40,000 which is also a top figure for a challenger on the all-title card.

The show will cost Mike Jacobs' Twentieth Century Club $195,000 . . . Mike expects it will draw $350,000 which will net him a profit of $155,000.

In addition to the Ambers-Montanez match, Barney Ross will defend his world's welterweight crown against Ceferino Garcia, Marcel Thil will risk his world's middleweight crown against Fred Apostoli, while Sixto Escobar will defend his world's bantamweight championship in a clash with Harry Jeffra.

Each of the championship bouts will go over a distance of 15 rounds.

Random Shots at Target

ROCKY PALLEDINO had cause to cheer when Mrs. Palledino's horse, Bubblesome, with Jockey LeBlanc up, came down front in the fourth race at Narragansett to win at the juicy price of $42 . . . The long price was due to the fact it was a sprint race with Bachelor Dinner and Campilla among the opposition . . . I saw Bubblesome turn in some excellent running performances at Agawam and Suffolk Downs . . . Russ Murray will manage the running horse meeting which opens at Great Barrington on September 27 . . . Dog racing returns to Wonderland Park, Revere, on October 1, for a stay of 16 days.

Gabby Hartnett Passes Up Car

Chicago, Sept. 16 (AP)—There will be no Gabby Hartnett "day" as long as Chicago is in the National League pennant battle—not even for a shiny, new automobile—if the Cubs' great catcher has his way.

A group of Hartnett admirers had planned to honor Gabby on September 23, date of the final game of the Cubs' last series this season with the league-leading New York Giants. A new automobile was to have been presented to him. But, said Hartnett:

"I am deeply appreciative of the desires of my friends, but the Cubs are in the thick of the pennant fight and I would rather not be distracted from the business at hand—helping the Cubs win the National League pennant and the World Series."

$12,000 Golf Purse at BELMONT

200 TO COMPETE IN TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES

Fighting for the largest purse ever to be split among professional golfers, top-notch golfers all over the country are forwarding their entries for Belmont's $12,000 open golf championship next week.

Forsaking other golf tournaments, the Smith's, the Picard's and other siege guns of the fairway pastime are wending their way towards a pot of gold and national fame.

The winner of Belmont's tournament will get $3000 and the runner-up will drag down $2000. The remaining $7000 will be divided 62 ways.

200 TO COMPETE

With entries still pouring in, it is expected that close to 200 "pros" and "pures" will drive, chip and putt over the rolling hills, narrow fairways and trickily trapped greens of the Belmont Country Club.

Henry Picard, recent winner of the Hershey $5000 open, is on hand. One of the greatest iron players in the game, Picard stands a great chance of carrying off top honors. The former Ryder Cup star has been practicing daily and is laying [illegible] stress on his renowned iron shots. Picard, a former caddy at the Plymouth Country Club, has returned to Bay State after an absence of 12 years.

Johnny Farrell, 1928 national champion, has joined the swelling ranks of professional entries. Johnny has been up and down the ladder the past few years, but on past form Johnny can give the best of them a few worries.

LYNCH ENTERED

Joe Lynch of Blue Hills and New England's last survivor in the national amateur championship, has forwarded his entry along with that of Allan V. Kline of The Country Club.

Joe is rated on par with Jimmy Thompson and Sam Snead when it comes to driving. Joe has tremendous power from the tee and may be the "dark horse" of the field.

Belmont, which has pulled a "Santa Anita" on other clubs, has been carefully grooming its championship course for the presence of the country's leading golfers.

Gallagher Goes Up

Glace Bay, N. S., Sept. 16 (AP)—Charlie Gallagher, an outfielder for the Glace Bay Miners in the Cape Breton Colliery Baseball League, has been ordered to report to the Cleveland Indians at Boston Saturday. Gallagher came here subject to recall by the Indians, who acquired him from the Cape Cod League this year.

Four Harness Races On Governor's Day Card at Brockton

By ED COGSWELL

Brockton Fair Grounds, Sept. 16—It was Boston Day in the early days of the Brockton Fair, but in these modern times Thursday has been renamed Governor's Day, and this afternoon the festival will be graced by the presence of Gov. Hurley and his staff.

He will have plenty to watch for entertainment but the fair committee on entertainment must have known the governor is partial to horse racing as they have reserved seats for the party directly opposite the judges' stand and finishing wire.

Four races are on the program, the driving club special, 2:25 trot in two divisions and the 2:25 pace.

In the first division of the 2:25 trot the Quebec entry of Lord Sherbrooke will start for the second time this week and will be after his fourth consecutive victory, having received the judges' nod at Essex Junction, Vt., and Rutland, Vt., before coming to Brockton.

For the second division of this event the popular choice will likely be Rugged Volo through the excellent race he put up the last time out. Good word, however, has spread around regarding the ability of Grantown, the entry of Simeon Brady, Goldens Bridge, N. Y.

It is expected that the battle in the 2:25 pace will be between Hal O, Peg Henley and Prudence Volo. It is just the sort of race, though, for a dark horse to make good.

Mayors' Day was a great success, if the presence of about 20 of the ruling highs from as many nearby cities is a pointer . . . Should be 60,000 at fair today, judging from the large mid-week crowd . . . Johnny Dill, who has been cleaning up in races this week, is only 21 years of age . . . A. Cameron beats that in age, being 17 . . . two extremely promising young trainers and drivers.

Looked for a time as if Dan Gilman with Calumet Dime was going to bring across another of his famous coups in the 2:16 trot . . . Remember what he has accomplished in winning with the mutuel odds a hundred and ninety to one against him . . . Henry Myott deserves a lot of credit winning with Peter Fair the 2:16 pace . . . Royal Napoleon was picked a cinch on his racing form this season. Cash Counter just lacked the speed when called on in the stretch drive. Today's entries follow:

Police Close Dog Track

Orangeburg, N. Y., Sept. 16 (INS)—The Orange Kennel Club Track was closed today after its attempt to reopen last night was blocked Attorney George V. Dorsey and Sheriff Edward Dermann of Rockby state troopers and District-land county.

When the greyhounds were lined up for the first race and patrons were flocking to the betting windows, the authorities stationed themselves at the windows and prevented further betting. Two races were run, and the remainder called off despite the protests of 1000 indignant fans.

Activity at the track was renewed after publication of a report that dog racing at the Mineola, L. I., track was to be allowed. However, the Mineola decision of the appellate division was based solely on whether District Attorney Martin W. Littleton of Nassau county had the right to appeal from a county court decision which dismissed booking charges against Nassau County Kennel Club officials. The decision did not attempt to establish legality of the races.

Stewards Ground Jockey Barba

New York, Sept. 16 (INS)—Jockey J. Barba was under indefinite suspension today for what the stewards said was an unsatisfactory ride on Pastry in the fifth race at Aqueduct yesterday. Pastry stumbled at the start, but made up the lost ground rapidly and lost the race only by a neck

Reb Russell Stabbed in New Haven

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 16—Spectators who attended the season's first indoor wrestling show here got a lot more action than they bargained for.

Before the grunting and groaning program had come to an end last night, a flying pop bottle had sent a woman to the hospital, a wrestler had been slashed by an irate spectator, police had employed their clubs on a score or more of heads and numerous fist fights had broken out in the arena.

It all started when Reb Russell, badman grappler from Texas, began to employ highly questionable tactics in his semi-final bout with St. Louis Ralph Garibaldi, a hot favorite here.

Partisan Garibaldi fans among the estimated 2000 spectators swarmed toward the ring and the future looked dark for Russell until Police Sergeant John H. Alexanda reached his side and kept the crowd at bay with his swinging nightstick. Six other officers stationed in the arena finally reached the center of the fracas and restored order.

During the height of the melee a flying pop bottle struck Mrs. Verna Grand, 36, who was sitting in a ringside chair. At New Haven Hospital authorities said she suffered severe chest bruises and possible rib fractures.

Two men were arrested on breach of the peace charges.

In the final bout, strictly an anti-climax, Dynamite Joe Cox of Kansas City and Nick Campofreda of Baltimore were both counted out after each had won a fall.

MAYOR May Try LUCK

CUP ONLY 120 YARDS AWAY

Have you sent in your entry for the Boston American - Sunday Advertiser Hole-in-One tournament?

Monday morning at 10 o'clock sharp Park Commissioner William P. Long will be on hand to start the Fifth Annual event at Franklin Park. Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield hopes to be on hand to tee up five pellets and try his luck.

Because of the interest shown in this event, five years ago Commissioner Long decided on constructing this special hole. He realized the only two short holes on the course were being played steadily and it would be unfair to the members.

PRO ENTERS

The tricky, blind hole is less than 120 yards long. The tee is plenty high, but because of a knoll the good golfer is little better off than a person of average ability.

John Ford, professional at the Blue Hill Country Club, informed the editor that he would be on hand Monday to take his five shots. Ford, the first year of the tournament, gathered a fine group of Blue Hill Country Club members, trotting them to Franklin Park's "19th" hole.

POST ENTRIES ACCEPTED

Throughout the four previous tournaments, there has been but one contestant able to drop the ball in the cup.

That was back in 1933, when Francis Rowbotham, A & P baker in the Somerville headquarters, heard a cheer and found out to his surprise the ball rolled into the cup.

All shots coming to rest in what we like to call the "charmed circle" will be measured.

Post entries will be accepted at the first tee at Franklin Park for those who have failed to mail in their entries beforehand.

McCoy Suspended In Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 16 (AP)—The Montreal Athletic Commission has suspended Al McCoy of Boston, who sent word that an injured hand would prevent him from meeting Andre Lenglet, French heavyweight tonight.

The commission approved Eddie Coderre, Pawtucket, R. I., as a substitute for McCoy, and the bout will be staged with Tommy Farr, Welsh heavyweight, as the third man in the ring.

McCoy and his manager, Bill Brennan, will be under suspension until he meets Lenglet here.

Old Westbury In Polo Final

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 16 (AP)—C. V. Whitney's old Westbury team galloped into the final of the national open polo championship on Hitchcock Field by swamping Templeton, 19 to 5, in one of the worst routs in the history of the event.

Stewart Iglehart accounted for eight goals.

Greentree and San Jose meet in the other semifinal today.

Hole-in-One Entry Blank

Here you are, acers! Here's your entry blank for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser hole-in-one golf tourney, to be held beginning Monday, September 20. Dub or star, anyone is eligible. Send your entry blank to the Hole-In-One Editor, Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Peace and Justice

SEAMEN on strike aboard the American freighter Algic sensibly went back to work when they were told their strike was AGAINST THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

Chairman Kennedy of the Maritime Commission served notice that if they persisted in their refusal to work they would be put in irons and prosecuted when the ship returned to the United States from Montevideo.

Unquestionably, the trouble aboard the Algic was incited by subversionists whose business it is to make trouble.

They were not representative of the majority of workers aboard the Algic, as is indicated by the alacrity with which their reason returned.

The incident involving the Algic was handled by Chairman Kennedy exactly as it should be handled.

The Algic is owned by the United States government, the members of its crew are government employes, and their defiance of authority was DEFIANCE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

To condone such defiance is to CONDONE INSURRECTION.

As Chairman Kennedy said:

"The Maritime Commission takes the position that the action of the crew is unlawful. It also takes the position that, in this particular case, such an act CONSTITUTES A STRIKE AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT. Neither situation can be tolerated."

This simply puts in different words the same declaration made by President Roosevelt a few days ago to the convention of the Federation of Federal Employes at Springfield, Illinois.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Militant tactics have no place in the functions of any organization of government employes. A strike of public employes is UNTHINKABLE AND INTOLERABLE."

BUT why should the principle stop there?

Of course, it is UNTHINKABLE AND INTOLERABLE that public safety should be jeopardized by strikes against the government.

But are not ALL violent strike outrages against the peace and safety and prosperity of the people of the United States?

The government is important only because it represents the people.

Acts contrary to the welfare of the people are as unjustifiable as acts which deny the authority of the government which represents the people.

Why should not labor differences and difficulties be settled by law and by courts of arbitration the same as other differences and difficulties are settled?

Why should not "militant tactics" against the peace and welfare of the PEOPLE of the United States be declared "unthinkable and intolerable"?

Why should not the nation have COMPULSORY ARBITRATION?

Australia has it. Is not the United States as peaceful, as progressive, as civilized as Australia?

PEACE and security are the benefits of civilization, the evidences of civilization.

The American people should COMPEL peace—and justice—by law and by the authority of the people's government.

Defiance of public authority and DISREGARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE are equally "unthinkable and intolerable."

Let Us All Celebrate

TOMORROW, the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution, will be a most important day in Massachusetts, as elsewhere throughout the country.

The big event will be the huge military and civic parade in Boston. More than 50,000 persons will march. And ten times 50,000 will see it.

In various other cities and towns, notably Methuen, additional celebrations appropriate to this historic occasion are planned.

These programs concern every man, every woman and every child worthy to be called an American. They deserve and should have wholehearted support.

The Constitution, a clear-cut guarantee of our liberty, freedom and justice, is the only instrument that stands between us and the oppression that now holds sway in practically every other major country.

Consequently, if we place any value on our right to live as free citizens in a free land, we ought to consider it our duty to make an outward show of the fact.

And on the Constitution's sesquicentennial the ONE and ONLY way to do that is to take an ACTIVE part in the official observances.

Shall We Wake Up Now?

FOR the second time in two weeks a man freed after conviction on a serious sex charge has allegedly confessed the slaying of a child.

Again we hear the story, all too familiar. A sentence for a sex crime, a term in a reformatory, and now a killing.

Thus, with added emphasis, the menace of the sex criminal once more confronts us.

Shall we at long last rouse ourselves from our stupor and place known despoilers of children and young women where they belong—permanently segregated behind bars?

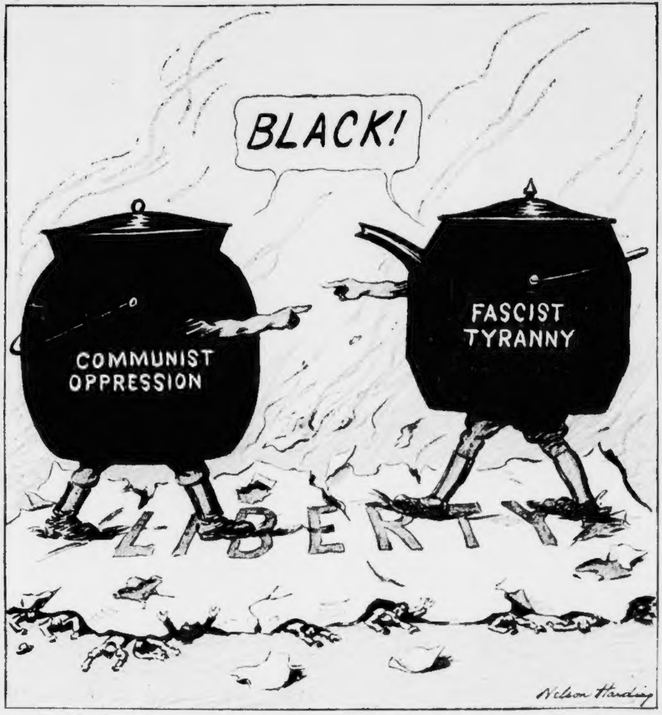
Or shall we continue to turn them loose to prey on the most defenseless of our population?

The choice is EVERY CITIZEN'S, and it must be made TODAY.

As a civilized and intelligent people we cannot afford to delay until the life of another little girl or boy is sacrificed on the altar of official laxity.

Pot and Kettle

By Nelson Harding



In the aftermath of the Great War, Communism thrust itself upon a disordered world—and brought forth Fascism.

The quarrel between these two rival "ideologies" rankles in the Chancelleries of Europe and reaches destructive violence in Spain.

The quarrel even has its unwelcome echoes over here.

We hear Communism denouncing Fascism, and Fascism denouncing Communism—each calling the other the destroyer of human liberty.

And, observing from afar what goes on in Europe, we see that BOTH are right—the POT is as BLACK as the KETTLE.

Obviously, neither Communism nor Fascism can have a place in AMERICAN affairs, and SHOULD HAVE no place even in the thoughts of an American.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 16. — From Nyack up the Hudson the other day I motored along part of the delightful stretch of the Tappan Zee that Washington Irving so beglamoured.

Still the flavor of revolutionary days. Especially at an old tavern at which we stopped.

A tavern that boasted the very table on which Washington signed away the life of Andre. Also the "original bar" which was doing middling well with trade. There was indeed a bit too much bluster in the presence of so much of yesterday — a presence really calling for bowed heads.

Too, I wandered among the old red and scabrous gravestones of a little white church, etched against a perfect sky. And noting the stones recorded the passing of innumerable octogenarians and there was the wonder if, after all, the doctors are lengthening life today.

Too, I talked to a sturdy young man on the roadside who said he was from Pleasantville and was on his way to Sneeden's Landing. There was something poetic about these names. Names that a hurrying civilization should not allow to die. Like Dobbs Ferry, they suggest a simple life we may never know again.

The screen is never so disillusioning for the popular star as is the legitimate theater. The cinema art of make-up can keep a star at pulchritudinous par for years. But the footlights, no matter the artifices, reveal all.

I saw a glamorous stage star after ten years the other night. In spite of the beauty parlors and such, she had moved on to a certain autumn quietude. She tried to be kittenish and express the old come-hither, but it wouldn't jell.

Ladies rarely learn Nature's lesson from the plum thicket that blooms at the roadside and the dried leaves that stir in the November winds and the aches and pains of the Old People's Home.

That lesson is that the Sweet Sixteen role can be played but once and briefly in the drama of life. It cannot be carried through the years.

Joe Moore, newspaper and magazine publisher, who passed on a month or so ago, had what many regarded as the town's most contagious laugh.

He was of enormous build, and when his round moon-face rippled into a setting for a roaring guffaw no one in the neighborhood could keep a straight face. He had a roar that shook the rafters and often touched off a whole dining room in a whoop.

Moore died exactly as he wished. He often said he would like to go out just like falling to sleep after enjoying a full meal. He had dined sumptuously at one of his favorite restaurants and was descending to the street when he slumped on the stairs, expiring before a doctor in the place could reach him.

Booth Tarkington is one of the few top flight writers able to cease writing for several years, return to it and turn out stuff as good as ever. His failing eyesight, now almost normal, has on three occasions kept him from writing for long periods. During these convalescences he never wrote a line, but in each case when he started again editors declared he was just as capable in plotting, character delineation and dialogue as ever. He is brushing the 70's.

Theodore Roosevelt was said to be swiftest of readers among laymen. He could scan an entire page almost at a glance, although his eyes were weak and he had to wear heavy-lensed glasses. Mr. Justice Holmes was also able to digest a typewritten page as others read five or six lines. Most magazine editors are block readers.

Harry Burton can riffle through a manuscript while talking to the author, and intelligently discuss the plot.

The air is full of sobs and moans
That a million radios spew;
For a million bleating barytones
Are yearning tonight for you!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Is goodness worth while?

Does it pay to fight for one's ideals?

Edith's wondering. Edith's a nice youngster—fresh from a fine home—chock full of Noble Ideals—and at grips, for the first time, with reality. Which, so far, has proved anything but a picnic.

For the world, Edith finds, isn't particularly enthusiastic about ideals or treated with the people who have 'em. Instead it's apt to give them a laugh—and fade when it sees them coming. So one more disillusioned young person is asking—just as you and I did at her age—

"DOES IT PAY TO BE GOOD?"

Well, youngster, that depends! Personally, I must admit that I don't find being good much fun. I realize, of course, that it's necessary. And admirable. N' maybe I'll get a halo for it some day. But honesty compels me to confess I don't enjoy it.

NO PARLOR TRICK

For goodness isn't the pleasant parlor trick it appears. It calls for all the honesty, intelligence, kindness and courage one possesses and as a result, is apt to be extremely inconvenient for everyone involved. It upsets smugness, challenges cowardice and raises Cain with laziness. Which is naturally mighty embarrassing for the ordinary human, and he's apt to want to get even.

So if you judge goodness by its immediate personal profit and pleasure, I'm bound to admit that it often seems a poor bargain. But there's another test which gives far different results. Have you yet seen the magnificent movie, "The Life of Emile Zola"? Possibly not. But when you do I suspect you'll feel much happier about goodness.

A COURAGEOUS MAN

In this play, Paul Muni plays the part of the rich and idolized writer, Zola. Born in the slums, Zola has carried the memory of their dark agony with him in his swift flight to fame. Then, at the height of his success, the challenge comes.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus, brilliant young officer in the French Army and the only Jew on the General Staff, has been framed by secret foes—tricked into signing a seeming confession of treason—deprived of his rank—sent to a living death on Devil's Island.

Though many suspect that Dreyfus is the victim of racial intolerance, none dare try to save him. Yet his heartbroken wife pleads, and, at last, Zola—the great and illustrious Zola—decides to undertake his defence.

That trial made history. Starting as a defense of Dreyfus, it became a deadly attack on Zola who was, in turn, condemned as a traitor—forced to flee for his life. Yet, though he paid a tragic price, Zola won.

Dreyfus was freed. And as Zola lay on his bier, with all France bowing before him in shame and gratitude, Anatole France delivered these immortal words:

"Let us not pity him because he suffered.

"Let us envy him!

"Let us envy him because his great heart won him the proudest of destinies. He was a moment in the conscience of man."

That's That

The 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States will be celebrated in Washington, D. C. tomorrow. President Roosevelt is to speak. Governors of many States are to participate in the ceremonies.

The 150th anniversary of what Gladstone acclaimed "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man" is an IMPORTANT occasion.

Better than all the oratory which will be dinned into American ears on Constitution Day would be a reading of the Constitution by every public official in the nation.

The Constitution, including the amendments, can be read in about one-half hour.

If the governors, especially, would read it and obey it, we should have better government and more efficient administrations.

It was never more important than now to understand the PURPOSE of the Constitution. It did not merely create and set up a new form of government. The Constitution was designed to curb the insatiable thirst of rulers for power. As Chief Justice Marshall of the United States Supreme Court said in the famous Marbury case:

"In the United States the powers of the legislature are defined and limited; and THAT THOSE LIMITS MAY NOT BE FORGOTTEN OR MISTAKEN, THE CONSTITUTION IS WRITTEN."

Understanding WHY we have a written Constitution is necessary to any clear understanding of WHAT this Constitution is.

The Soviet newspaper, Izvestia, which is regarded as a mouthpiece of Dictator Stalin, announces that Russia is prepared for war and "will be able to defend herself against the Italian pirates and aggressors." Germany was confident she was prepared for war in 1914. But she overestimated her strength.

The sufficiency of any nation's preparedness for war depends to a large extent upon whom it fights. Russia might be able to whip Italy. But if war breaks out, it will not be limited to those two nations. Russia will have to fight Germany as well as Italy, and Japan may climb upon her back, too. By the time the war is fairly started all of Europe will be mixed up in it, on one side or the other.

On paper, Russia has the biggest standing army in the world and one of the biggest air fleets. But whether their fighting ability will measure up to their size remains to be seen.

Science Studies Radicals

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

Karl Marx was an untidy old person, bewhiskered and bookwormish, living in a higgley-piggley house, knee-deep in scraps of paper—the notes and memoranda of years which he never seemed to be able to get in shape.

Engels took him in hand, spruced him up a bit, pieced the paper scraps together and kept at him until, together, they worked out "Das Kapital."

That's just a random bit of background for the contention of the distinguished Dr. Maurice H. Krout of Chicago that scrubbing children's faces turns them into radicals. Dr. Krout makes a learned report of this before the convention of the American Psychological Association at Minneapolis.

True it is that the historic compendium of socialist doctrine never came through until the gloomy, bewhiskered old Marx was tidied up by Engels.

The connection between ordinary family prophylaxis and radicalism may seem rather far-fetched, but Dr. Krout worked it up from case histories. The lads that had been be-deviled by their parents about washing behind the ears turned out to be left-wingers. The whole business seems puzzling and inconclusive.

Aunt Sally, of course, nagged Tom Sawyer endlessly, trying to make him take his Saturday night bath. Tom didn't become a radical, but he was a rebel of a sort, an adventurer and a runaway. Maybe there's a thought there. Most children bathe about every day nowadays.

A CURE FOR RADICALS?

Maybe the way to check radicalism among the young would be to go back to the old-time Saturday night bath. Then, at worst, they would be radical only in the strategy with which Tom Sawyer conned the other kids into whitewashing the back fence.

The professor, at least in the accounts I saw, didn't make it clear why enforced face-washing should induce a proletarian slant. Possibly the turn to radicalism is merely rebellion against the tyrannical parents. But if this is true, why did uncleanliness among radicals prevail to a degree which made the frowsy radical a newspaper cliche?

Just the other day a New York humorous weekly printed an amusing picture of a whiskered Utopian with a soap box. The pay-off came in the third panel when he opened the box and began ballyhooing, not Karl Marx, but soap. The picture said, in effect, that it's news when a radical has anything to do with soap.

Gene Debs was a neat and fastidious radical. Johan Most, with the mattress beard, much less so. Thoreau was as tidy as could be. There were other Brook Farm radicals who were never more than a jump ahead of the board of health.

Lenin took care of his person; many of his runners-up were notoriously frowsy. Sockless Jerry Simpson was no tailor's dummy, but his hell-raising contemporary, old "Blood-to-the-Bridle-Reins" Waite, Governor of Colorado, was fussy about his dress and his daily bath. You never can tell.

HOME LIFE BLAMED

But psychologists persist in the contention that a child's early home life and training, or lack of it, may determine his adult tendencies and attitudes. Even more than his school life. Right now the New York Board of Education is working out a plan to organize a staff of 18 visiting psychologists, to look into the home life of difficult or maladjusted children.

Continual nagging may warp a child's personality. That is probably where Dr. Krout's thesis on face-scrubbing comes in. Of course, the savants are saying what intelligent parents always have known.

But, no matter how much we incline to old-fashioned ideas, there is one thing to be said for the psychologists.

Without exception, they insist that too much interference and supervision is bad for children; that the thing to do is to provide them a decent environment and leave them alone as much as possible; they agree that "the watched pot never boils."

JEFFERSON'S VIEW

That might go for government too. At least Thomas Jefferson thought so. I asked a psychiatrist of many years experience in the field of mental hygiene about definite psychological inducements to radicalism—if any. He said:

"There are always dissenters, always minorities in every civilization. But there are certain definite pathological aspects of the chronically rebellious temperament.

"They lie, I believe, in the effort of the man who has failed in life to find a justification for his failure and trying to make "society" a scapegoat.

"I have examined many radicals, some of them of high intelligence, who have been emotionally unstable. This unbalance is nearly always traceable to the man's inability to compete with smarter men in the life struggle.

"He finds in some Utopian doctrine an elaborate justification and escape. I do not dismiss all non-conformity and dissent in this manner. I merely state what I believe to be the most definitely observable clinical aspect of radical trends.

"Modern education and social science have neglected training and discipline of the imagination and emotions. That may be more important than mind training. There, I believe, lies the next great scientific advance."

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

The Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, the official government political party of China, has made General Chiang Kai-Shek the absolute dictator of China.

Chiang, who is 51 years old, in 1925 became head of the famous Whampoa Military Academy founded by Michael Borodin, "unofficial" agent of the Soviet government.

In 1925, Chiang became commander-in-chief of the Kuomintang armies and made the Soviet general, Galen, his chief of staff.

In 1927 Chiang had become so powerful that he bounced both Borodin and Galen and began an anti-Communist campaign throughout central and southern China. In 1928 Chiang was made president of the Chinese national government.

That is the story of the rapid rise of the newest dictator in the world whose country owes a great deal of its present troubles to its flirtation with Communist Russia.

As I pointed out the other day, the grave and almost reverend British Association for the Advancement of Science sometimes suddenly goes Ga-Ga.

Here is further evidence of it:

Professor Hooke, of Kings College, London, told his brother atom-sharps that "Cain's slaying of Abel was not jealous murder but a ritual for increasing the fertility of the soil."

He further said to these serious-minded gland-sleuths that not only did Cain and Abel have nothing to do with the Garden of Eden but they were not even brothers.

Let me recall to you that this British association is for the "advancement of science" and not for the manufacture of baloney.

The difference between the fertility of science and the sterility of will of millions of human beings today was strikingly illustrated by Rabbi Goldenson, of Temple Emanu-El, New York city, in a sermon recently, when he said:

"The strange thing is that whereas men of science are learning daily of the infinite variety of things that make up the structure of the universe and find our world ever richer by reason of this variety, in the human fold we are impatient of difference and feel that we can be comfortable only in uniformity."

That sums up the struggle that is going on at present throughout the world between many-sided individualism and regimented sameness.

Science, the methods of evolution and the very spirit of the supreme intelligence itself aim at VARIETY, while men seek—under Communism, Nazism and Fascism—the dead level of equality.

Almost all of our opinions and ideas are founded on what we wish rather than on reason. "THE WISH IS FATHER TO THE THOUGHT," as Shakespeare said.

Dr. Hadley Cantril, associate professor of psychology at Princeton University, who has been prodding into the fruitful subject, has shown that in questions sent to 12 widely differing social groups the answers are almost invariably founded on self-interest or wish-thinking.

How little "prophecy" is worth Dr. Cantril reveals in the fact that last April some persons to whom he sent letters announced positively that Congress would accept President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization plan.

Even cold-blooded gamblers are unconsciously guided by wishes rather than by calculation in betting on prize fights, horse racing and elections, for they are more often wrong than they are right.

We are ruled almost entirely by our prejudices. Even astronomers and mathematicians are guided by a secret wish to see some darling theory of theirs come true rather than by a love of "abstract truth."
